VICTOR LAWSON leaves his Chicago Evening News to the Illinois Merchants' Trust Company to operate or sell it, as they choose.

John J. Mitchell, head of that trust company, is an able a business man as there is in Chicago.

Nevertheless this advice is offered:

Sell the Daily News while it is still a valuable property. If a great bank were left to the greatest of editors, wherever he may be, Mr. Mitchell would advise him to sell the bank and he would be right.

A NEWSPAPER, like a baby, must grow or die. Putting a newspaper in the hands of a trust company or a committee, is like leaving a baby in a straitjacket.

Leave it in a straitjacket too long and you will never get it started again. So it is with a newspaper.

MR. LAWSON left three-quarters of his entire fortune to the Chicago Congregational Missionary Society, the Chicago Theological Seminary and the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago.

This would indicate that when he made the will Victor Lawson was not very close to the little people that made his paper and his fortune, especially to those that stood on the outside in the rain waiting to get the "Help Wanted" advertisements.

SHAKESPEARE'S Hamlet, in modern clothing, with knickerbockers, bobbed hair and cigarettes, is, according to London critics, a great success. It takes extraordinary conditions to make a failure of Shakespeare.

Once in London, a lady from the Continent did the Lady MacBeth sleep-walking scene with a very tight and plainly visible corset under her night gown. Even that couldn't kill the lines.

THE next step probably will be Hamlet playing the ukulele in the ghost scene, soft jazz music by the band.

To know Shakespeare, read him in a book. Whoever needs the methods of modern actors to help Shakespeare's lines couldn't understand those lines anyhow.

WHILE OTHER makers cut prices, Henry Ford decides to paint his car, change the looks and keep the price.

Once upon a time, before he used the self-starter, Ford told his agents, "I have a starter for you." When the agents, much delighted, asked to see it, Ford said, "I have cut the price $50. That will start your Ford."

Anything about Ford is news, since more than 10,000,000 Americans have bought Ford cars.

AN INTERESTING birthday party at Morristown, N. J., yesterday. John Aikman Stewart, oldest alumnus of Columbia University, oldest trustee of Princeton University and oldest banker in the world, celebrated his 103rd birthday. Mr. Stewart, chairman of the board of the United States Trust Company in New York City, takes life quietly —"easy drives, quiet talks, much silence and reflection." That's why he has lived to begin his 104th year. Anybody COULD do it.

THE REVEREND C. A. MERRILL, of Massachusetts, dropped dead playing tennis. You don't need to be told that he was more than fifty years old. Men past fifty should play tennis only with their grandchildren, moving around slowly, letting the children win. Any strain on the heart, from a cold bath in the morning to a cold cocktail

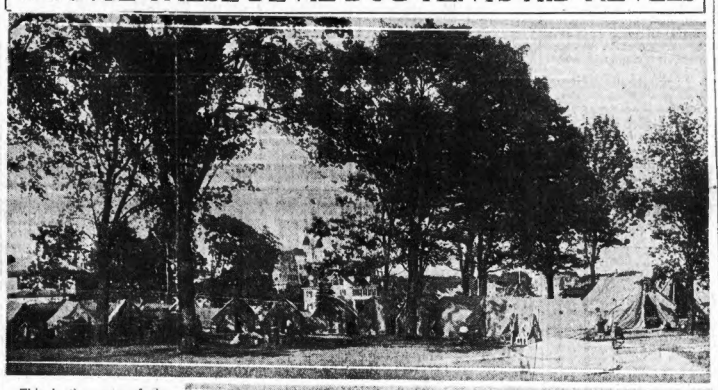
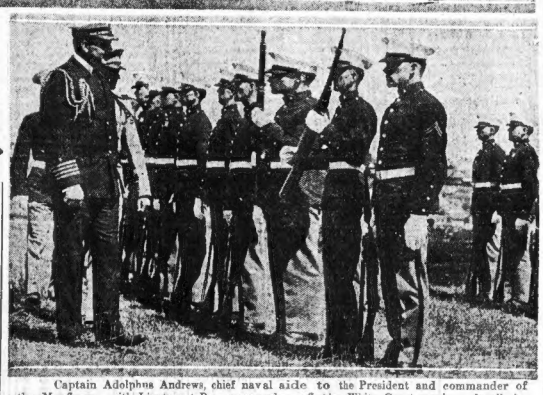
MIDNIGHT PARTIES OF OFFICERS BLAMED BY SLEEPY MARINE GUARD

CHARGE THESE DEVIL DOG TENTS HID REVELS



This is the camp of the marines at the Summer White House at Swampscott. It is charged by some of the marines that they were forced to use parts of the tents to make a canopy to curtain gay parties given by the officers to young women.



Captain Adolphus Andrews, chief naval aide to the President and commander of the Mayflower, with Lieutenant Poe, commander of the White Court marines detail, inspecting the sea soldiers at Swampscott. Captain Andrews has ordered a court-martial of two marines, charged with sleeping on duty.

USE 'DOG TENTS' TO SHIELD GIRLS, LEATHERNECKS AVER

Tales of gay parties in the marine settlement on Galloupe's Point, near White Court, Swampscott, in which officers of the corps and others entertained girls and forced tired "leathernecks" to play the role of waiters have created a sensation among those who came to the North Shore as part of the White House entourage.

The further fact that two marines, a corporal and a private, accused of sleeping on duty, will use these matters in the defence of charges registered against them in a summary courtmartial has produced consternation.

From among the officers of the Mayflower, Captain Adolphus Andrews will select the members of the court-martial board which will hear the charges against the sleepers. This board will hear Lieutenant Wright of the Mayflower charge the marines with having slept when they should have been standing guard, protecting the President of the United States.

It is understood the marines will not deny the charge, but will plead extenuating circumstances. And thereby hangs the tale. They will insist that during the night, when they should have been resting, they were forced to assist at functions. They will claim they were forced to strike their pup tents and convert them into screens that the officers and girls might eat screened from prying eyes.

BEATS WIFE'S COMPANION

Gloucester, Aug. 27.—Eben Hutchinson, a Boston lawyer and bank director, who motored here with two young women, was dragged from his automobile by William Sullivan, Stoughton machinist, and vigorously cuffed and beaten, the police charged today.

The women accompanying the lawyer and banktr were the machinist's wife and his sister-in-law, Miss Margaret C. Olson, of No. 32 Falcon street, East Boston.

The battle was staged in Main street, which was crowded at the time. The police allege the machin-

BELIEVE BOY IN VAT MURDERED

The theory of foul play was considered today in the investigation by Salem police and Essex County authorities of the mysterious death of five-year-old George Lewis, whose body was found in a vat at the plant of the Russell-Sim Tanning Company, No. 10 Blaney street.

Medical Examiner Frank S. Atwood was to confer today with District Attorney Edward G. Clark regarding sending away the organs of the boy's body for a more minute examination.

The medical examiner's autopsy revealed no wounds or marks on the body except a bruise on the forehead, believed to have been inflicted several days ago.

INSISTS HE WAS VICTIM

Mrs. Willard Lewis, of No. 77 Derby street, the boy's mother who was nearly prostrated when his body was found, insists George was a victim of foul play.

Salem police, under instructions from City Marshall Daniel J. Phalen, are seeking a peddler who had been friendly with the Lewis boy. An anonymous message received over the telephone by Lieutenant Charles

NEW PEACE OFFER BY COAL OPERATORS

Philadelphia, Aug. 27 (Universal). —John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, went into an early morning conference at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel here today with John H. Uhle of Wilkes-Barre and Ralph H. Ammerton of Scranton, members of the Citizens' No Strike Committee of the anthracite fields who had made a hurried trip by automobile from Wilkes-Barre to meet him.

Today had been decided upon for issuing the strike order, calling out 158,000 anthracite miners on September 1, but Lewis was not expected to take any further action toward a strike until he received from Uhle a complete report of events at the conference of the citizens' committee with the operators.

Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators committee at the Atlantic City parley, represented the attitude of the operators in the fol-

TENTS MADE CANOPY TO HIDE GIRL VISITORS, MARINES SAY

COMPLAIN OF POOR FOOD

And then these pup tents were readily converted into canopies under which the members of the fair sex and the cashing officers might walk unseen by curious outsiders, they will say. And then they will claim they were forced to wait on table and perform other menial tasks which prevented their sleeping at regular hours.

TWO MEN NAMED.

Navy regulations do not allow the names of the offenders to be made public. From other members of the marine detail here it has been ascertained that Corporal Shanton of Cleveland, O., and Private Kay of Texas are the men who will face the board. Brother marines insist they are being made common ordinary "Navy angoras."

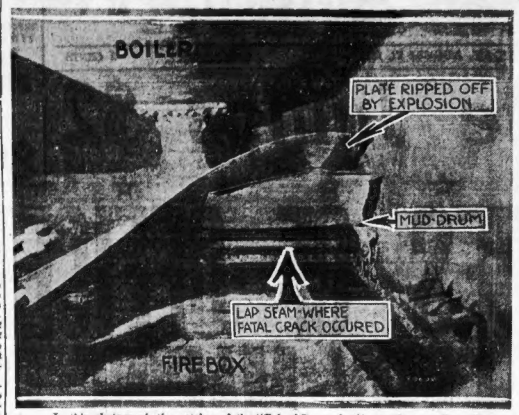
And it's these extenuating circumstances which the men rely upon to save them from the disgrace of dishonorable discharge from the service. In some circles the impression prevails that there'll be a tendency to do something toward helping the men on charges.

One of the sleeping marines charges that he was kept on duty at White Court and the nearby marine camp three days without rest. The marines are supposed to do four hours at White Court, guarding the approaches, and allowed two hours respite. This marine claims he was kept on duty most of the preceding night as a waiter supplying food and beverages to marine officers and their social visitors in a lively party at Calloupe Point.

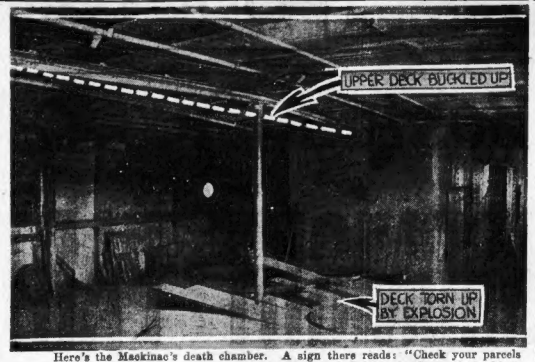
The men assert they have been provided with poorly cooked food of inferior quality and that they have been left to shift for themselves without orders from their superiors who, they charge, have been indulging in midnight soirees.

The forty marines sent here as special guard for the President were represented as veterans selected because of their valor overseas and their experience at foreign embassies. The marines say that as a matter of fact most of them are rookies and that they have been taught little by their superiors.

"TUB'S" DEATH TRAP AFTER THE BOILER BLEW ITS PATCHES



In this photograph the patches of the "Tub of Pawtucket" are shown after the explosion got through with them. Note the ripped off place and the lap seams where the fatal crack occurred. Both of these scenes have been vividly pictured in words at the inquiries into the catastrophe, which has thus far claimed nearly 55 lives.



Here's the Mackinac's death chamber. A sign there reads: "Check your parcels and enjoy yourself." Note how the upper deck was buckled by the force of the blast, how the planks in the floor were splintered and warped. It was here that death's toll was heaviest, for this part of the "Patched-up Tub of Pawtucket" was crowded with merry-makers.

HUB LETTER CARRIERS' SUBSTITUTES PROMOTED

Washington, Aug. 27.—The Post-office Department today authorized the promotion of three letter carriers in the Boston postal district, specified by name, to position as foremen and the employment of three additional regular clerks at an entrance salary of $1700. The regular clerks will be drawn from present substitutes.

HALT MACKINAC QUIZ FOR NEW WITNESS

Providence, Aug. 27.—Federal and State investigators, inquiring into the disaster aboard the Mackinac, the "Patched-Up Tub of Pawtucket," which has already cost 53 lives and brought serious injury to a number of others, are today marking time. The inquiry before the United States steamboat inspectors stands suspended pending the recovery of Assistant Engineer George Mullen.

John Grant, chief engineer of the ill-starred steamer, is at his home in Toutsett, Mass., on the verge of a serious collapse. He electrified a gathering which filled a courtroom in the Federal building yesterday with his testimony. His admission that he had lied for the purpose of "covering up" was considered startling.

INSPECTORS CARELESS.

Today Judge William R. Snyder, legal assistant to Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, is sealing and digesting the testimony offered by Grant and the other witnesses. Particularly is he mulling over the statements of the engineer that laxity on the part of Federal inspectors and ship engineers is common.

From Newport information comes that 16 patients remain at the two hospitals, with all save three of them well on the road to recovery. Included among those whose chances are now considered as favorable is Mullen, whose story is much desired by the investigators.

At the Naval Hospital the names of Alfred Collinson, a police officer, and Monica Dickinson remain on the danger list. At the City Hospital only Mrs. Emily Troeger is considered in a critical condition.

WHOLE FAMILY GONE.

In the last 24 hours one patient died and another, in death, an entire family was wiped out by the blast. He was James J. McCarthy, father of Baby Jean, whose tragic ending sent gloom throughout the Newport City Hospital. The father lingered for a week and a day.

Narragansett Bay gave up one of its dead. A boatman, out of Newport, rowing off Coddington Point, found a body. He took it to the government landing and the police were called. They believe it that of Alfred Breault of Pawtucket, a passenger on the Mackinac. At least two and possibly four bodies remain in the bay, it is believed.

Collections in Providence total more than $24,000, and in Newport they have reached approximately $10,000. It is believed the Red Cross and other agencies will have approximately $50,000 before they finally close their books. And all that will be needed to care for the sufferers, arrange burials and perform other necessary works of mercy.

BELGIUM WILL SEEK $50,000,000 LOAN HERE

Brussels, Aug. 27.—Possibilities of floating a fifty-million-dollar Belgian loan in the United States are being studied by the Belgian ministry of finance.

The proposed loan would be offered in the American market in the Autumn on a long term basis, the proceeds being used for internal improvements.

Miss Ederle May Swim Sunday

Boulogne, France, Aug. 27 (A.P.)—Weather conditions at present are by no means favorable for Channel swimming, nevertheless Gertrude Ederle, the American star, may start her second attempt Sunday evening, or failing that, on Monday or Tuesday.

Pick Dean Pound to Head Ohio University

Columbus, O., Aug. 27 (A.P.).—The name of Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard Law School is mentioned for the presidency of Ohio State University here, it was learned today.

Selection of a successor to Dr. William O. Thompson, who recently resigned after 25 years, will await return shortly from Europe of Julius F. Stone, Columbus, a member of the board, it was said.

Some months ago Dean Pound declined the presidency of the University of Wisconsin.

POLICE THINK THUG TROY MAY BE WOUNDED

Worcester, Aug. 27.—The elusive John Troy, leader of the thugs who have terrorized Worcester County for over two weeks, today was still leading the police of this city and nearby towns a merry chase.

With every available officer continually on the alert, the fearless gang leaders retains his liberty without any real clew as to his whereabouts. While some police officials believe he has left the district, others are of the opinion that he is in hiding, waiting the excitement to die down before resuming his activities.

That Troy may have suffered bullet wounds last Friday night when his lieutenant, Walter Dervaier, met death, from Patrolman Daniel J. Sullivan's gun, is a theory advanced by the police. It is based on a report that a stranger sought bandages of a City Hospital nurse and disappeared before the night supervisor was summoned.

Patrolman Sullivan, whose life has been threatened by Troy, has been taken off an East Side beat and is doing station duty.

ist dragged the attorney out of his car to pummel him.

Mr. Hutchinson, according to the same authority, said he motored down to listen to the chimes of the Portuguese Church—the largest in America. Sullivan was in court to called upon to testify against him he declined to take the stnd at least at first.

The Sullivans are estranged, living apart under a separate order.

It is alleged a private detective accompanied the machinist to Gloucester, and they were trailing the banker and Mrs. Sullivan.

Apparently the detective took no part in the alleged attack.

Early this year Mr. Hutchinson was the victim of a vicious attack in his office on the eighth floor of the Pemberton Building. He was beaten unconscious. A great deal of secrecy was thrown around that affair and the assailant was never caught. The lawyer had two well blackened eyes.

LETTER WARNS HUB CHINESE OF DANGER

headquarters of the Hip Sings at No. 49A Hudson street, in the heart of Boston's Chinatown and was from Wong's aunt, Mrs. Fin Lin, a white woman of Holyoke.

The letter, written in English, is as follows:

Dear Harry. You must be very careful. Don't get hurt. You are a marked man. The other side realizes your activity and today, in Holyoke, I was told that the other side are going to "get you." Watch out for your telephone conversations and be careful what you say over the telephone. Don't go to the picture show Wednesday night, as that is the time that has been set to hurt you. I am very much worried, so be careful.

The letter is signed Mrs. Fin Lin, and the three children. The letter was written in pen and ink and very legible. Mrs. Fin Lin is a white woman. She married Lin five years ago. Her husband is a successful Chinese merchant in Holyoke, and Harry Wong, who is a relative by marriage, is the favorite relative of the white woman.

As a result of the receipt of the letter, Harry Chin, head of the Boston Hip Sings, announced that he would ask Police Commissioner Wilson to assign a detail of forty policemen as a guard at his headquarters.

Meanwhile, quiet reigns throughout the Chinese district. Extra police are on duty in the district to prevent any outbreaks and to pick up suspicious characters.

Special Officer Nelson is detailed at the Hip Sing headquarters and two officers are at the headquarters of the On Leongs. The house at No. 51 Albany street, where the wife of Yip Gee, who was shot at the beginning of the trouble, resides, also is under guard.

A conference between the leaders of the rival factions is scheduled to take place in the office of the district attorney in New York tomorrow. Pending the conference, a truce has been signed by both sides.

EXTRA PATROLS PUT ON.

Three Chinese are under arrest in Baltimore in connection with the shooting of Louie Kwong, a restaurant proprietor, and member of the Hip Sings. A fourth man, alleged to have done the shooting, is being sought by the police.

Police of Hartford and Springfield have put extra patrols in the Chinese districts as a result of the threatened disorders. The Chinese also are keeping a strict guard in their buildings, the police report. It is impossible to enter any building in Chinatown without being challenged by a Chinese guard.

WORLD RECORD SWIM CLAIMED BY GERMAN

Berlin, Aug. 27 (A.P.).—A German swimmer, Kemmerich, yesterday accomplished what he claims is a world record when he swam 37 miles in 33 hours, from the Island of Fehmarn across Mecklenburg Bay to Warnemunde. He was unaccompanied, steering his course by means of a compas wrist watch and sustaining his strength from a flask of hot beef tea.

3 TOWNS HELP NEIGHBOR FIGHT FIRE IN STORE

Hightstown, N. J., Aug. 27 (A.P.).—Fire broke out in a store on Main street, and shifting winds threatened to spread it to a large part of the business section of the town. Hightstown firemen were aided by forces from Princeton, Granbury and Freehold, and at a late hour did not have

BELIEVE CHILD FOUND IN VAT MURDERED

Salem Authorities Say Boy of 5 Could Not Have Lifted Plank; Pedlar Sought

A. R. Duffee at police headquarters said if the peddler were questioned he could reveal the child's whereabouts.

CALLED AT HOUSE

The police were told this man called at the Lewis home about 7 o'clock Monday night, shortly after George disappeared, and on inquiring for him was told he was somewhere in the neighborhood.

The body was found by Romar Rosinsky, a worker at the tannery, in the settling bed or vat. The vat is covered with inch planking nailed at one end, with the other end unsecured so that the vat can be cleaned out.

Rosinsky said that one of the boards was out of place, leaving a space of six or eight inches.

The police say the Lewis boy could not have lifted the board, as his left arm, recently fractured in a fall, was in a sling. They also believe this ailing would have prevented him from falling through a narrow opening as the splint projected some inches beyond the body.

SAYS HE BOUGHT ICE CREAM

Investigation is being made of a report that the child was seen the night he disappeared, buying an ice cream cone in the store next to his home. Mrs. Lewis declared George had no money when he left the house. She also insisted that the boy's hat be found.

Although the vat was partly filled with leather refuse and chemicals the body was in a good state of preservation, which is regarded as evidence that it had been in the tank only a short time.

COAL MAGNATES OFFER NEW PEACE PLAN

lowing statement, which followed closely on the heels of a previous statement by Inglis, in which he indicated the operators had not relented in their stand against considering any of the miners demands which would result in increasing the cost of coal production:

"In order to avoid a suspension on September 1, we (the operators) are willing to renew negotiations with representatives of the United Mine Workers looking toward a new agreement, provided you (the citizens' committee) arrange a conference, and, provided further, it is distinctly understood that we have not agreed to abandon our opposition to the check off and wage increases, both of which we are willing to consider fully, but both of which we now believe to be unsound and unwarranted."

Inglis' statement contained all that the citizens' committee had asked—that the operators accede to any demands of the miners or that the miners withdraw any demands, but that both sides "wipe clean the slates" and resume negotiations in an effort to prevent a tieup in the hard coal fields.

Lewis said today:

"I have pointed out the one sentence in my Hazelton address which is the heart of the mine workers' position as to further negotiations. If they will withdraw their statement on record in the conference that they will yield nothing and reject everything that disturbs the factor, of mine costs then there can be a renewal of negotiations.

Mr. Lewis will continue his conference with the representatives of the citizens' committee today and a definite decision that will probably settle whether or not there will be a strike is expected before tonight.

WINTHROP BEAUTY WINS IN MAINE

Miss Bernice Gay Smith of No. 123 Herman street, Winthrop, winner of beauty contest at York Beach, Me., has never used rouge, powder or alluring perfume.

PRETTIEST GIRL IN MAINE TEST BANS ROUGE

Paint and powder do not always a beauty make. Long before Rudy Valentino's daddy-in-law, or his predecessors in the art, conceived the plan to make beauty where none existed, Helen of Troy started a war with her handsome features and Burning Saph, raised the merry old Ned.

Hence it must not be considered odd or strange that Miss Bernice Gay Smith, of No. 123 Herman street, Winthrop, won a beauty contest. For be it understood that during her entire lifetime of 21 years Bernice never chased madly from one beauty shop to another seeking for this tint or that, this scent or that in her quest for beauty.

With skin and features as pure and clean as the driven snow, Bernice ventured into a beauty contest at the Casino at York Beach, Me. And out of the myriad of entrants she was chosen as the one beautiful girl.

Miss Smith is a brunette. She's a lover of outdoor sport, more particularly swimming and tennis. And she's a real beauty as the judges and the assembled folk at the York Beach Casino will amply testify.

ARRAIGNED FOR MURDER OF HIS WIFE WITH HATCHET

Worcester, Aug. 27.—Walter F. White, 66, of this city, was to be arraigned today on a charge of murder in connection with the death of his wife, Mary Ann White, 67.

White, it is charged in the indictment, hacked his wife with a hatchet in their home, at No. 525 Cambridge street, during an altercation. Mrs. White died in a hospital two days later.

BOY HERO SAVES CHUM AT L STREET BATHS

Richard J. Howard, 13 years old, of No. 38 Holborn street, Roxbury, is the pride of the neighborhood today after his heroic rescue of William Manning, 11 years old, of No. 896 Parker street, Roxbury, at the L street baths, South Boston.

Manning, swimming in the boys' division, became unconscious and sank. Young Howard dashed to his rescue,

MRS. MARY LANEN DIES AT SOUTH GROVELAND

Mrs. Mary Jane Lanen, one of the best known residents of South Groveland, where she lived during the last sixty years of her life, is dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Sharkey, No. 8 Lanen avenue, South Groveland, in her seventy-sixth year.

The funeral services will take place at St. Patrick's Church, South Groveland, with a solemn high mass of requiem at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

HUB MEN DIRECTORS IN BIG POWER ENTERPRISE

New York, Aug. 27 (A.P.)—Formation of the board of directors of the recently organized Mohawk Hudson Power Corporation has been completed. Charles S. Brower will be chairman and Charles S. Ruffner, president.

The directors include Roger W. Parson of Wellesley Hills, Mass., and Francis E. Frothingham of Boston.

COP FIRES FOUR SHOTS TO NAB SUSPECT

Baker, who surrendered at the Boston & Albany tracks after a chase from Commonwealth avenue, gave an address which the police say is fictitious.

McCue, while making his rounds, saw a man in front of the filling station, who hurried away as the policeman approached. McCut spurred his mount to a lope and the man took to his heels. McCue fired two shots into the air.

The fleeing man redoubled his efforts, and taking Newbury street in two strides, continued towards the railroad. With the officer in close pursuit, he crossed Boylston street and was rapidly approaching the safety of the Boston & Albany yards when two more shots halted him.

BRAINTREE BOY IS SAVED FROM DROWNING

Braintree, Aug. 27.—George Reardon, nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Reardon of Academy street, South Braintree, was saved from drowning in Sunset Lake by William Allen of Franklin street. The boy, with a number of others about his own age, was in a rowboat. Opposite Lakeside Cemetery the Reardon boy jumped out, thinking the water was shallow. He could not swim and sank. The other boys yelled for help.

Mr. Allen heard the cries of the boys and dove overboard with his clothes on. He reached the place where the Reardon boy jumped overboard and had to dive to get him. The little fellow had gone down three times.

AUTO HITS HORSE; TURNS OVER AND BREAKS WHEEL

Rowley, Aug. 27.—An automobile operated by Percy Cook of Avon, Me., struck a horse being driven by Mrs. Bertha Perley of School street, this city, on the Newburyport turnpike and knocked it down. The automobile capsized and one wheel was broken.

Cook was arrested and jailed on a charge of operating a motor vehicle so that the lives and safety of the public might be endangered.

LITTLE GIRL PLAYS WITH MATCHES; DIES OF BURNS

Holyoke, Aug. 27.—Yvette Brodeur, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arman Brodeur, of No. 319 Montcalm street, Fairview, died at Holyoke City Hospital from burns received in the afternoon at her home. While she was playing with matches, the child's dress caught fire. The mother in trying to put out the fire was severely burned about the hands and arms.

COOLIDGE TO HAND OUT MEDALS TO SCHOLARS

New Bedford, Aug. 27 (A.P.)—Thirty-three children of the New Bedford public and parochial schols, with few exceptions boys and girls of non-English speaking parentage, will go to White Court, Swampscott, where President Coolidge has consented to greet them, and bestow the Evening Standard Medal awarded for proficiency in the English language.

GLYNN PICKS NEW HERO MEDAL BOARD

The duty of selecting the member of the Boston fire department most worthy of receiving the first of the Boston Evening American's Diamond Medals has been assigned by Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn to a new Board of Merit, which will assemble at the Bristol street fire headquarters late today.

The fire commissioner will urge each and every member of the new Board to pick the winner without further delay.

Selection of the new committee was decided upon yesterday, when the members of the "hold-over" board asked to be relieved of duty.

On the outgoing board were Deputy Chief Henry J. Powers, District Chief Michael Teehan, Captain Charles Parsen, Lieutenant Roger F. White and Private James E. Fracey.

Deputy Powers called the attention of the fire commissioner to the order under which he and his associates were asked nearly two years ago to take up the work which specifically directed them to investigate deeds of valor and name the Fitzgerald and Scott medallists "for the year 1924."

In view of the specific language of the order which called them into being as a Board of Merit, the five members of the "1924" Board of Merit urged that they had no standing in the year 1925 and asked as a group to be relieved of this duty.

NAMES NEW BOARD.

Thanking each of the five for the time and attention he had given to the work for the period of his service, Commissioner Glynn promptly granted the request and as promptly drew up an order calling together a new Board of Merit.

The members of this new board of merit, which will meet at 3 o'clock today, are:

Deputy Chief Frank A. Sweeney, Division 2, with headquarters in the house of Engine 32, Warren avenue.

District Chief Patrick J. V. Kelly, District 9, Engine house 33, Hampden and Dudley streets.

Captain William J. Shepard, Ladder 13, Engine house 22.

Lieutenant Charles H. McDonnell, Tower 1, Fort Hill square.

Private George F. Burckhart, Engine 18, Harvard street, Dorchester.

While some sixty members of the Boston Fire Department have been called to the attention of the chiefs in the six months' period to be considered in connection with the first of the Boston Evening American's diamond medals, it is generally agreed that the winner will come from among the large number of firemen who were on duty in and around Beach street at the time of the Pickwick Club disaster, or from the two or three men who distinguished themselves three weeks afterward at the Hotel Nightingale fire in Roxbury.

THREE MENTIONED.

There is no "contestant" for the medal, in the sense that any fireman is actively conducting a "campaign," but the names most mentioned are those of William F. Walsh of Ladder 4, Hoseman Edward F. ("Larry") Doyle of Engine 5, and Deputy Chief Edward J. Shallow of Division 1.

The Diamond Medal has been ready and waiting ever since August 1. The Boston Evening American is eager to present it to the right man and thus clear the decks for another six months and prepare for the presentation of a second medal.

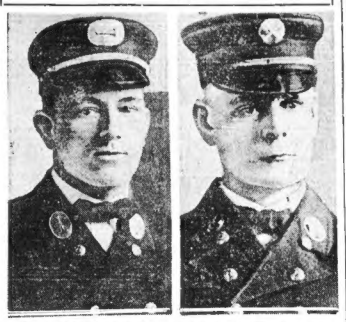
It was intimated yesterday that there might be personal reasons for the disinclination of some of the outgoing Board to participate in an award at this particular time, and with so many claims to distinction as came out of the Pickwick Club horror and the Hotel Nightingale fire.

Commissioner Glynn declined to discuss this phase of the situation.

"It is unnecessary to go into that," the Commissioner said, "the important news is that a new Board of Merit has been called together. There are only a few cases of what might be called 'medal calibre' for them to go into, and I can see no reason why they should not decide this matter within a few days, at the most."

The Boston Evening American, and the first of this newspaper's Diamond Medals for Boston firemen, awaits the pleasure of the new Board.

WILL AWARD FIRE HERO MEDALS



Deputy Chief Frank A. Sweeney of the Boston Fire Department (on left), and Captain William J. Shepard of Engine 13, members of the new board which will award the Boston Evening American's diamond hero medal to the fireman whose deeds they consider the most worthy.

INHUMAN ACT LAID TO BERRY PICKERS

Paxton, Aug. 27.—Berry pickers seeking to foil any attempt to allow their presence on posted land being reported are responsible for the binding to a tree of William Harney, seven, found chained near his home here.

The boy was held a prisoner three hours before he was found by workmen of the New England Telephone Company. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harney of Maple street, can give the police no possible clue or reason for the attack.

To the police the lad said he was on his way to the Van Wyck farm, near his home, when he saw a "foreigner" and two boys. The man shouted something which the boy did not understand and forced him against a tree, where the two boy companions held Harney while the "foreigner" tied him with rope and chain.

GEN. SUMMERALL REVIEWS VERMONT C.M.T.C. TODAY

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 27 (A.P.)—Major General Charles P. Summerall, commanding the second corps area, will arrive at Fort Ethan Allen at 10 a. m. to review the New England and New York, New Jersey and Delaware members of the citizens military training corps, who will complete their month's period on duty here on Saturday.

PITTSFIELD STRIKERS TO VOTE ON NEW OFFER

Pittsfield, Aug. 27.—The textile strike is due for a settlement within the near future, according to opinions expressed. The manufacturers met to formulate some plan of action. The strikers will meet again today, when they will vote on a report to be submitted by the employers.

COLE GOING STRONG AS HE FINISHES FIRST LEG

"Still going strong" was the cheery message that Sarg Cole, "the Canadian Iron Man," passed along to a Boston Evening American reporter today after completing the first leg of his endurance test of five days and five nights, shackled to the steering wheel of a new Essex coach.

During this gruelling 120-hour grind the husky former lumberjack and North woods guide expects to remain awake and eat nothing but ice cream. Cole's stunt is being promoted by the Boston Evening American.

VERY MUCH AWAKE

At intervals of not less than an hour Cole accosted the following Greater Boston policemen during his first night's drive: Igoe, in Watertown; Hoyt, West Newton; Townsend, Wellesley; Harless, No. 1002, Boston; McLaughlin, No. 207, Boston; Connelly, No. 130, Boston; Lyons, No. 199, Boston; Tompkins, Newton Lower Falls; Clark, No. 1488, Boston; C. J. Burkinshaw, Saugus; Winslow, Salem. He also called at fire engine house No. 8 in Newton.

Any "doubting Thomas" who questions the above is invited to check them up with the policemen mentioned.

He was as bright as a newly coined silver dollar when he reported at the Boston Evening American office in Winthrop square today to do his stuff for the second day.

"Why, I'm as fresh as a daisy," he said to a Boston Evening American reporter, "and I'm going to feed all those folks who told me yesterday that I would not be able to go without sleep for five days and five nights.

DAYS SLEEP ONLY HABIT

"Sleeping is merely a habit," he added. "It is a well known fact that such eminent men as Thomas Edison, the wizard of electricity, have trained themselves to go with a limited amount of sleep, so why can't I do the same thing, with a physique such as mine? I weigh 200 pounds and has a chest expansion of 9½ inches).

"During normal times I seldom sleep more than four hours a night. Life is too short to waste it in bed. Just figure the hours the average person uses up lying in bed asleep—practically one-third of their lives. For a person 60 years of age that means 20 years. Think of it! How many vital things could be done during a portion of those 20 years.

"Suppose persons cut their sleeping down to four hours a night; that would mean that the man or woman of sixty would really live ten years more. Food for thought in that, isn't there?"

GIVEN BIG RECEPTION

The "Canadian Iron Man" was given a wonderful reception wherever he went. Children and adults alike, smiled and spoke reassuringly to him. Occasionally grouches were encountered but they were forgotten.

The former Canadian lumberman and guide loves children. He took great delight in distributing toy balloons to the kiddies all along the route. At City Point, where thousands of them were in bathing, upon his arrival they swarmed all over the machine in which he was seated.

Additional thousands greeted him at the conclusion of the baseball game at Braves Field. The same was true in Dorchester, Roxbury, Jamaica Plain, Allston, the Newtons, Back Bay, Charlestown, Chelsea, Revere, Somerville, Cambridge, Wayland, Lincoln and Weston. It was a continuous reception all along the route. And what wonderful good wishes he received from everybody when he stopped for a few minutes to hand out balloons to the youngsters.

Nearly all who spoke to him seemed as much interested in the fact that he is to live only on ice cream supplied by the H. P. Hood Company during the five days and nights, as in the fact that he is to go without sleep during that period.

"Don't you wish you could have a good corned beef and cabbage feed now?" asked one wit, who seemed as if he lives to eat. "Not at all," replied the "Canadian Iron Man," "the average person eats far too much in Summer, and I expect to obtain plenty of sustenance on these 'Hoodsies' that I eat."

CLEVER DRIVER

And maybe Cole can't drive that Essex coach! During the first portion of the ride the writer was amazed at the ease with which the big woodsman operated it, especially in the Commonwealth avenue traffic, following the baseball game, when three lines of automobiles were moving on both sides of the street car tracks.

The purring engine was hardly audible and how those brakes held as he brought the car to sudden stops!

As for the other equipment on the car, the Lovejoy shock absorbers proved their worth on the very first leg of the stunt. The writer has ridden all over New England, but never encountered such a rough stretch as on a detour in Wayland while with Cole. The Lovejoys saved all in the car from going through the roof on this part of the trip. The car is also equipped with Lovejoy bumpers and Weed chains.

The Bieberling tires "did their stuff" without fault, and twenty-seven miles to the gallon obtained from Metropolitan Gas & Oil Co. gasoline spoke volumes, not only for the machine but also for the fuel. Oil supplied by the same concern proved excellent.

"LOCKED UP" BY MAYOR.

Cole was not only handcuffed to the steering wheel by Mayor James M. Curley, but Boston's live-wire chief executive closed the locks that keep the daring rider confined to his seat.

A representative of the Boston Evening American passed the keys to handcuffs and locks to Mayor Curley with the request that he retain them until next Monday at 12:15 p. m., when the Mayor will use them in Winthrop square to release the "iron man."

"Are you married?" asked the Mayor of Cole, as he snapped the last lock in place.

"No," replied the sleepless wizard.

"Well, you'd make some good woman a good husband, I am sure," replied His Honor, laughingly.

"I'll think that over," was Cole's rejoinder.

The "iron man" is to visit all sections of Greater Boston and some of the outlying towns and cities. Look over the list in today's Boston Evening American and watch for the conqueror of Morpheus in your neighborhood. Don't fail to see him. You'll get "the thrill that comes once in a lifetime."

IRON MAN FINISHES FIRST DAY OF TEST

Sarg Cole, "Canadian Iron Man," as he looked today after finishing the first leg of his exacting endurance test.

Today's Route For Shackled Driver

Sarg Cole will visit the following places today. Keep your eyes peeled for him.

Left Winthrop square, Boston, 9:15 a. m., going thence to Charlestown, Chelsea, Lynn, Salem, Beverly, Boston Common (noon). This afternoon he visits Somerville, Medford, Winchester, Woburn, Wilmington, Lowell, Billerica, Concord, Lexington, Arlington and Cambridge.

The route for Friday will be: Winthrop square, Boston, 9:15 a. m., Cambridge, Watertown, Belmont, Waltham, the Newtons, Wellesley, Needham, Dedham, Hyde Park, Forest Hills, Stoughton, Brockton, Abington, Rockland, Weymouth, Quincy, Braves Field, Boston, before and after the fight.

SEA MONSTER PROVES JUST BASKING SHARK

Boothbay Harbor, Me., Aug. 27.—The sea monster was revealed as a basking shark by a U. S. fish hatchery expert, after it had kept the population of this village awake speculating on what it might be.

DOG BITES GIRL; IS ORDERED LOCKED UP

Thirteen-year-old Irma Colburn of No. 49 Maxwell street, Dorcester, attacked by a St. Bernard dog a short distance from her home, was rescued by Simon Duffin, son of Simon E. Duffin, Boston attorney, after the child had been bitten twice.

The girl battled with the dog nearly the minutes before young Duffin, who lives at No. 91 Maxwell street, went to her rescue.

The child's wounds were treated by a physician an dwhen it was found the animal was not mad, the police ordered its owner, Anthony Genille of No. 121 Maxwell street to keep it locked up.

According to Irma Colburn, she was walking down Maxwell street bound for a nearby store, swinging a newspaper in her right hand. The St. Bernard, said to be a playful animal, jumped at her, and she claims bit her right arm.

The child went home where her wound was dressed, and a short time later again started for the store, this time with her grandmother, Mrs. W. E. Davis. At about the same place on Maxwell street, the girl said the St. Bernard again attacked her, and before she was rescued by young Duffin, tore her left arm.

GARDEN BLOOMS NIPPED BY FROST

Frost was reported in several Boston suburbs today, in the wake of a thirty-six degree drop in temperature.

Gladioluses in the garden of Mrs. Joseph J. Glancy of Wellesley Farms were found nipped by the frost this morning, less than twenty-four hours after the mercury reached the highest point for an August 26 since the beginning of the century.

Men who railed at the dictates of fashion yesterday and reluctantly wore their coats went to work in top coats.

A cold north wind, heralded the cold wave. From a sign 92 degrees yesterday afternoon, the temperature dropped within a few hours to 56, which it was this morning in Boston.

The weather forecaster, who predicted the cold spell, likewise predicts that it will not last long, and that popular attention will swing back from the coal problem to the beaches in a day or two.

A warm week end is promised. In the cranberry bog section of Cape Cod, however, there was considerable apprehension today, as another cold night seemed in prospect.

And in the market garden districts on the outskirts of the city, there was the same feeling of uneasiness.

Man Wins 14 of 18 S. S. Day's Run Pools

New York, Aug. 27.—One of the 661 first cabin passengers arriving from Southampton and Cherbourg on the White Star liner Olympic was John McKeon, who won $6,000 on the pool on the ship's run and at baccarat.

Two voyages ago McKeon went east on the same ship and won three pools on the day's run, which netted him $7,500. On this voyage he won $2,000 on two pools and the rest at baccarat, where the stakes were as high as $1,000 on a turn of the cards. His record to date is the winning of 14 day's run pools on 18 voyages.

Last night's frost, which was not general, apparently, did no great damage to gardens but more than a little to flower gardens.

"JAZZ GIRL" YOUNGEST SAN QUENTIN PRISONER

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—San Quentin prison is about to receive the youngest woman ever to be confined with its bleak walls, Dorothy Ellingsen, the 17-year-old matricide. Found guilty of manslaughter by a jury, Dorothy was sentenced to an indeterminate term of from one to ten years by Superior Court Judge Harold Louderback.

GIRL CHARGES 4 WITH ATTACK IN REVERE

Four young men were arrested by the Revere police today, following an alleged attempt to attack a young woman near the Revere Cycle Track, while she was on her way to work.

The men were so drunk the girl managed to free herself, she said, and running home telephoned the police.

William Curtis, twenty-six, North shore road, Revere was charged with an attempted attack on the young woman. The other three, charged with drunkenness, gave their names as Clarence J. Fielding of Warren street, Revere; Cyril Ryan of Mt. Bowdoin terrace, Dorchester and Francis Sullivan, of Beach street, Revere.

On arrival at the police station Ryan and Sullivan started to fight the police said, and additional charges of mutual assault and battery were placed against them.

POLICE ANSWER WIFE'S CRIES; FIND SUICIDE

Wakefield Man Hangs Self to Cellar Pipe While Despondent

The screams of a wife who found her husband hanging from a water pipe in the cellar of their home threw the entire Salem street section of Wakefield in a fever of excitement which resulted in a patrol wagon full of police dashing to the scene, expecting to find a brutal murder being enacted.

The excitement began when Mrs. Bertha Curtis, wife of Ernest L. Curtis, of No. 41 Salem street, noticed that her husband, who has been despondent for some time, was missing from the front room of their home.

Mrs. Curtis, after searching through the upper floors of the house, looked into the cellar and from the top of the stairs could see her husband hanging from a water pipe with a rope about his neck.

According to the police, Curtis has been despondent for some time. He had apparently carefully planned his act, the police having found a box near the body upon which the victim had apparently stood as he made fast the rope about the water pipe from which he hung.

Medical Examiner Reecee D. Parker was called and stated that Curtis had committed suicide.

ADMONISHES OFFICER IN NURSES' CASE

Washington, Aug. 27 (A.P.)—Secretary Wilbur has again expressed his disapproval of the recent court martial in which two navy nurses were acquitted of charges of illegal importation of liquor on a transport by admonishing Lieutenant Andrew L. W. Gordon of the Marine Corps, for his conduct as prosecuting officer in the trial. Failure of Lieutenant Gordon to present to the court statements in his possession from the two nurses, Misses Ruth M. Anderson and Catherine Glancy, drew the chief criticism. He added: "It is perfectly apparent there was no effort upon your part to establish the guilt of the accused."

HOBOKEN MAYOR BANS NEWEST FLAPPER DANCE

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 27 (A.P.)—A conditional ban was placed by Director of Public Safety McNeely upon the Charleston, newest flapper dance. In orders to the police he instructed them to stop the dance in any hall where its portrayal brought about a noticeable vibration of the building.

The action was based on the report of a policeman stationed in a Grand street dance hall Tuesday night. He said the taworting of the Charleston plans made the building sway menacingly.

10 ANIMALS DIE IN 2-HR. FIRE IN MEDFIELD

Medfield and Walpole firemen had a tough hour's fight on their hands early today when ten cows and two horses were burned to death as two houses and two barns were levelled in High street, Medfield.

Ten persons were made homeless, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Olson and four children, and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Haverty and two small children were driven out of their houses.

The fire, which is believed to have started in one of the barns, was discovered by Mrs. Olson, who ran a quarter of a mile to call the firemen by phone. A mile of hose had to be laid to fight the fire, the heat of which melted telephone cables in the street.

Adjoining woods were set ablaze, but the flames were quenched before they gained much headway.

TRAIN HALTS IN NICK OF TIME, SAVES AUTO

Motorist in Court Today for Crashing Through Crossing Gate in Revere

Two men giving their names as Joseph Heanus of No. 119 Belmont street, Belmont, and Frank Norman of No. 10 Orchard street, Arlington, were to be arraigned in Revere court today charged with drunkenness after their auto crashed through the crossing gates of the Narrow Gauge road at Winthrop street, Revere.

A Boston-bound train was brought to a stop within a few feet of the damaged auto, which had stalled on the tracks.

Heanus was driving the car, the police allege. Several passengers on the train were badly shaken when the emergency brakes were suddenly applied.

HIGHEST COURT TO DECIDE BUS LINE RIGHTS

Judge Lummus So Rules Refusing Injunction Asked by Newton Taxpayers

Whether a bus line engaged in interstate transportation can do an intrastate business must be determined by the Supreme Court, according to a ruling by Judge Lummus in Suffolk Court.

The ruling was made in refusing an injunction sought by Walter A. Barrows and nine other taxpayers of the city of Newton. They sought to enjoin the Fairmont Stage Lines, Inc., from operating passenger busses between Boston and Worcester unless it obtains a valid license from the city of Newton, a permit from the division of highways and a certificate from the Public Utilities department.

The case was continued until Wednesday, when the petitioners were told to bring a new bill based on the respondent's theory of the case so that it might go to the Supreme Court.

Anita Lihme to Wed Prince Lobkowicz at Watch Hill

Many Notables Plan to Attend Ceremony at Quaint Chapel in Rhode Island Town

Betty Alden

THE wedding of Miss Anita Lihme, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Bai Lihme of Chicago and Watch Hill, R. I., to Prince Edward Joseph Lobkowicz, on Saturday in the Watch Hill Chapel is the premiere society function of late Summer in Southern New England.

AROUND of pre-nuptial festivities are on the cards. Mr. and Mrs. Lihme are to give a large party and dance out of doors in the gardens of Norman Hall, their Watch Hill Summer home. Mrs. Clement A. Griscom 2d, (Olga Lihme) of Haverford, Pa., gave a dinner-dance at the Watch Hill Yacht Club for the wedding party, and on Saturday, just before the wedding, Miss Katherine Rogers is hostess at a buffet luncheon.

THIS EVENING Miss Mary Griscom, of Philadelphia and Miss Dorothy Rhodes of Detroit entertain at a dinner dance for the weding party and guests. Notables are gathering at Watch Hill for the wedding.

COUNT AND COUNTESS Apponyi of Budapest arrived on the steamship Olympic yesterday. They stay in this country about two weeks. Count Apponyi will be an usher. Count Vetter of Vienna came over on the Berengaria, and is now at Watch Hill. Count Palluicini of Vienna, also a passenger on the Olympic, comes over to be an usher.

MRS. LIHME has taken over Stonington Manor Inn, at Stonington, Connecticut, for wedding guests over the week-end. Mrs. William Andrews of Watch Hill also opened her house for guests and there will be a notable company staying at the Misquamicut Golf Club.

MISS NARCISSA VANDERLIP, daughter of Mr. and Frank A. Vanderlip of New York and Scarborough-on-the-Hudson, arrives from England Friday, aboard the Mauretania, and goes at once to Watch Hill. She is a bridesmaid.

WEDDING GUESTS include many notables. The Princess Rospigliosi, formerly Miss Griscom; Countess Collerede-Mansfield (born on Iceland, who comes from Vienna, Mrs. Marcias Daly of Southampton will attend.

MRS. HAROLD PEABODY occupies a distinguished place in the Summer life of Bar Harbor, on Mount Desert Island, Me., where Boston has a notable representation. Mrs. Peabody was Marion Lawrence.

THE BRIDE is of the slender, blonde type, is well known in Chicago's smart set. The romance is the outcome of a meeting at Palm Beach, last Winter.

PRINCESS MICHAEL CANTACUZENE is caught up in a round of informal entertaining during her present stay at Nahant as house guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis (the "Tom" Curtises, all their Nahant neighbors call them). Indeed neighborliness is the keynote of each festivity in the young matron's honor (she was Clarissa Curtis)—affairs somewhat impromptu and smacking largely of Nahant's usual informal way.

NEXT TUESDAY Mrs. Curtis gives a tea at "Pelham Clare," the Nahant place, to which Summer folk up and down the Shore are bidden. Mrs. Charles Dale Turnbull, of Boston and Nahant, gives a large luncheon at the cosy Nahant Club for the daughter of her old friends and neighbors.

ANOTHER AFFAIR at the Nahant Club, about which much of the festivity centres, is the luncheon Mrs. Winthrop T. Hodges of Nahant and Concord gives for the Princess. Mrs. Howland Seabury, (Rosamond Johnson) also will entertain for her girlhood friend, before the Princess rejoins her husband in their Chicago home.

MRS. CURTIS GUILD entertained brilliantly last Sunday, for the Princess, at a large luncheon at the Nahant Club. The honor guest wore a most becoming frock and hat of white, showing a dash of vivid crise in scarf and collar. Mrs. Guild's costume was of green and white chiffon and broad transparent hat, very handsome and of the simple line Mrs. Guild affects so well.

THAT STRIKING BRUNETTE, Mrs. John Barrymore (Michael Strange), topped a vivid blue frock with white chapeau for Mrs. Guild's luncheon. The stage's North Shore set also had Miss Mary Hone as guest, that charming Southern girl now with the Empire Theatre players at Salem.

MADAME DE MARVINO, wife of the Italian Ambassador; Count and Countess Italia Forta (the Count is Secretary of the Italian Embassy), Admiral Louis R. de Steiguer and Mrs. de Steiguer, Captain Adolphus Andrews and Mrs. Andrews, the Louis Bacons, Mrs. Lavalle, Vladimir Gorinsky, and many of Mrs. Guild's neighbors in the Nahant set, were luncheon guests.

SPEAKING OF THE de Steiguers, everyone regrets that the popular navy yard commandant and his handsome wife are leaving Boston for another station, when the Admiral's new duties take him elsewhere. The de Steiguers have made a large circle of friends during their stay at the navy yard.

SOME CLEVER PERSON is due for a substantial cash prize as interpreter of Friday evening's "Cross Word Puzzle" cabaret down at the Hotel Oceanside, Carolin. The shore's elite will be out en masse to help a favorite charity, the Infants' Hospital, and Mesdames Oliver Ames, Jr. and Theodore Frothingham, ingenious matrons that they are, promise an unusual entertainment.

Waldorf System, Inc.
149 High Street
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

It is a pleasure to endorse the precautions you and your employees take in order to provide the public with clean and sanitary restaurants.

During the several days recently spent in visiting Waldorf Restaurants with Mr. Adcock, your Boston Division Manager, I saw many evidences of that policy of care and thoroughness which, I am sure, extends throughout the entire Waldorf System.

The purpose of this League, as you know, is to support and strengthen all efforts to increase the health and happiness of our citizens. And, in this connection, we were glad to find that you are leaving no stone unturned to make each Waldorf Restaurant a model of sanitation and cleanliness.

Our careful inspection of Waldorf Restaurants, aided at every point by your cooperation, has convinced us that Waldorf's ideal of cleanliness and sanitation is in perfect harmony with that of the Consumers' League of Massachusetts.

Sincerely yours,
Mary C. Wiggin
Executive Secretary.

HUDSON-ESSEX PRICES CUT ON ENCLOSED CARS

The fourth Hudson-Essex price reduction within a year has been announced affecting the entire line of Hudson-Essex enclosed cars—which means more than 35 per cent. of Hudson-Essex business. The price of the Hudson coach is more than $300 lower than a year ago, the Essex price more than $200 less and the Hudson sedan $450 less. Compared with war-time prices, all three cars sell at less than half the top figures. Each previous drop in price has greatly increased the number of buyers, and each time this added volume of business has made possible greater economies in buying, manufacturing and all general expenses and overhead, it was explained by [illegible] president of the Henley, Kimball Company.

HUB MERCY SHIP SEEKS NEW GIVERS

Floating Hospital, in Need, Appeals to Those Who Have Not Aided It Before

New givers — humanitarian inclined persons who have not previously aided the Boston Floating Hospital—especially are appealed to in a quest for funds.

While contributions are not equal to last year's, the hospital is conducting an unusually heavy service this summer. Its officials express apprehension because, with this larger work, the contributions are not sufficient.

They also voice hopefulness in their quest for new givers, because of the enlargement and practical success of their work.

In their appeal the hospital officials correct an idea that the undertaking is prosperous. They are really cramped for funds, they say.

In their enlargement program the age limit of patients has been raised. Innovations include the use of one of the open wards for carefully selected orthopedic cases, chiefly those of severe rickets with marked deformities.

The hospital is not limited entirely to actually ill cases, as the day patients' deck carries on extensive work among an older group where cases of under-nourishment are taken in hand—where quick, marked improvement results under the combined hygienic care of their bodies, with proper dietary regulation.

The hospital has a force of ninety nurses, divided into day and night shifts. House officers and food laboratory technicians number twenty-two.

When crowded there are about 200 children and mothers on the ship.

PAIN FORGOTTEN, SHE GAINS NEW LIFE

Little Margaret, patient sufferer from spinal curvature, under the tender care of skilled, gentle hands on the refreshing deck of the Floating Hospital, gets happiness she never finds elsewhere.

AIRSHIP FOR NEXT TRIP TO POLE, SAYS ELLSWORTH

Washington, Aug. 27 (A.P.)—Lincoln Ellsworth, American member of the recent Amundsen Polar expedition, called on Secretary Wilbur today to express appreciation for the navy's readiness to attempt his rescue when the party was lost.

He expressed agreement with Commander Donald B. MacMillan that lighter-than-air craft, rather than airplanes, should be used in Arctic exploration, telling the secretary he contemplated another push into the north, but would never travel again in a heavier-than-air machine.

YOUNG THAW FIGHTS SUIT OF GRANDMOTHER

New York, Aug. 27 (A.P.)—Lawrence Copley Thaw has served notice through his attorneys he will fight the suit instituted by his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw of Pittsburgh, for the return of a $600,000 gift.

In a petition filed in the Federal Court Thaw denied his grandmother's contention the gift was obtained by coercion on his part while Mrs. Thaw was ill. The petition further states that he is the only member of Mrs. Thaw's immediate family to apply himself to business.

BRIGHAM NAMED B. & M. ASST. GEN. MAN.

Promotion for Former B. & A. Executive and Officer of 14th Engineers

The appointment of Dwight S. Brigham, for the past six years assistant to President James H. Hustis of the Boston & Maine railroad, as assistant general manager of the system, was announced today.

Mr. Brigham in the past 18 years has had an unusually well balanced experience in operating and staff positions. Graduating from Harvard with the class of 1903, he took up railroading after a course in the Graduate Engineering School, and served for eight years on the Boston & Albany in various operating positions, among them chief clerk, crew dispatcher, train dispatcher, trainmaster and assistant to the general superintendent.

In the past six years, as assistant to the president of the Boston & Maine, his staff duties have included service as representative of the New England roads in the successful presentation of the case for increased divisions from western lines and as representative of the Boston & Maine in negotiations leading to the granting of practically all government loans since Federal control.

In war time, Brigham went overseas with the 14th Engineers (Railroad) with the rank of major, and was promoted to lieutenant colonel, serving under general staff assignment as regulating officer for the Second Army.

MAYOR FORBIDS FURTHER USE OF NOL PROS

Seeks Amendment to Law Giving District Attorney Powers to City Solicitors

Use of an old nol pros law by the city law department in traffic violations was ordered discontinued by Mayor Curley in a letter to Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan. Instructions that an amendment be drawn looking to the repeal of the law were contained in the letter.

The Mayor's action was due to a report which reached him through newspapermen that traffic police officers were about to appeal to the police commissioner against the interference of the law department in cases of traffic violations by entering nol prosequis under a law passed in 1853.

This law gives town solicitors and city law departments the power of district attorneys in offences against by-laws, ordinances and rules of the city or town.

E. Mark Sullivan said that there had only been two instances of nol prossing in his department so far as he knew. Both, he said, were with the consent of the police officers who were prosecuting. One was that of George H. Harrell, Swiss Consular Agent, who was charged by Traffic Officer Patrick A. Hurley of Division 20 with parking on a restricted street longer than 20 minutes. The case was nol prossed, Mr. Sullivan says, with his consent and the consent of Officer Hurley.

The other case was that of Max Davidson, charged by Officer Dennis F. Guthrie of Division 20 with a similar offence. The nol pros was entered by Assistant Corporation Counsel H. Murray Pakulski.

MOVIES OF POPE WILL BE SHOWN IN WOBURN

"SALLIES" WILL SERVE FORMER COMRADES

Yankee Division Doughnut Memories to Be Revived at Parker Hill

Two of the "Sallies" who brought hot doughnuts to the front for the boys of the Yankee Division will revive wartime memories when they perform the same service for some of their former comrades, now patients of the Parker Hill U. S. Veterans' Hospital No. 44 today.

Mrs. Gladys McIntyre Harmon and Mrs. Major Hammond, two of the four Salvation Army lassies who braved shell fire and poison gas to bring cheer to the doughboys, are the workers who again will cook and fry, or whatever it is, the delicacy made famous by them in the war.

Some of the 400 children at Wonderland, the Salvation Army Camp in Sharon, will help entertain the wounded soldiers with singing and other performances.

MOCK MARRIAGE AT HOLLISTON, SEPT. 5

The famous "Mock Marriage" which annually attracts thousands of New Englanders to the Orchard House at Holliston, Mass., will again be the feature of a big evening's entertainment on Saturday, September 5.

Genial Jack Gots, master of ceremonies, promises additional entertainment in the form of some good vaudeville acts and a dance to the music of a special jazz orchestra from Chicago.

C. M. T. C. GREAT MELTING POT, SAYS FULLER

Governor Praises Devens Students and Pleads for Maintenance of Ideals

Camp Devens, Aug. 27.—A plea for maintaining the ideals they had learned at the C. M. T. C. was voiced by Governor Alvan T. Fuller at the close of his review of the 1,400 students.

He congratulated them on the fine result of their work as exemplified in the review and the exhibition of mass calisthenics. The State's chief executive also thanked them for their self-denial during the training period.

Urging that unity must be preserved in this country, the Governor said that the greatest melting pot of democracy and citizenship was the training camps. There all creeds mingle for a common end.

It is hard, he declared, to reconcile pacificism and militarism, but that the country can look to the training camp students "as disciples of the coming idea—preparedness, that is justice with peace and preparedness as exemplified by Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt."

"I'm for you," declared the Governor, as he finished his address, and Brig.-Gen. Malvern-Hill Barnum, camp commander, led the students in an enthusiastic "three cheers" for the Governor.

Press day was also observed, and a score of representatives of New England papers inspected the camp.

Governor Fuller presented to Daniel J. Murphy, of Natick, a brother of Col. John D. Murphy of the 101st Infantry, the cup awarded to the outstanding student-soldier. He is a White course student and a medal winner of last year.

A special physical proficiency test was necessary to decide the winner of the best student-athlete cup. Lawrence Tweedy and Alexander Reidell tied at the meet, but in the test Tweedy edged out ahead and was presented with the cup.

16 Children Minus Water; Landlord on Vacation

A landlord who shut off the water in a house because a pipe was leaky and then went away on a vacation has been making things anything but pleasant for 16 children, living in a three-story tenement block on Ellis street, Lynn. A plumber, who is supposed to have been notified to fix the leak and turn on the water, has not put in an appearance.

The families have been getting water from neighbors in buckets, cans and pans. Mrs. Frank McCafferty, one of the tenants, made an appeal to the water, health and police departments, but was told that nothing could be done.

An effort will be made today by the health department to have the pipes fixed and the water turned on. The landlord is expected back shortly.

SPANISH WAR VETS TO TAKE TRIP TO ST. PETE

Bookings for the official Spanish War Veterans' tour to St. Petersburg, Fla., have been coming in so satisfactorily the past week that indications point to a special train movement made up of comrades from the various New England departments. The train will probably be run as a section of the "Colonial Express," leaving Boston at 9 a. m., Friday, September 25.

Preparations are being made by the General Leonard Wood Camp of St. Petersburg, also the Chamber of Commerce of that city and principal business houses, for the entertainment of the visiting comrades.

'CINDERELLA' TO REWARD HER DETECTOR

"Girl With New Fall Shoes" Is $100 Prize at Revere Beach Saturday

There'll be a "Cinderella hunt" at Revere Beach, Saturday afternoon when the Boston Evening American's "Girl with the New Fall Shoes" appears and her footwear will bring a prize of $100 to the person fortunate enough to identify her first.

This modern Cinderella, who reverses the old order by bringing gifts, will appear on the promenade between the hours of 4 and 5.

RULES ARE SIMPLE.

Of course, like all other treasure hunts, this search for Cinderella will be governed by three definite rules. There are three of them.

First—You must approach "The Girl with the New Fall Shoes" with a copy of the Boston Evening American, dated Aug. 29.

Second—The girl must be found along the promenade at Revere Beach while walking. No other way nor place will win you the $100.

Third—Upon approaching her you must address her in the following manner: "You are the Boston Evening American's Girl with the New Fall Shoes."

WILL BE SMARTEST.

She refuses to let you know in advance what type of shoes she'll wear. But she guarantees they'll be of the smartest Fall style. They may be oxford or high shoes, slippers or sandals. They may be conservative black or some new and gay shade such as pansy or crushed berries.

But she gives you a clew to her identity each day in the Boston Evening American. Study her features as they appear, one by one, and get them fixed in your mind before you start looking for her on Saturday.

Pick out the girl who most resembles your mental picture of the girl, drawn from the pictures which have appeared in the Boston Evening American, and then look at her feet. If she's wearing the smartest shoes you ever saw, don't hesitate a minute.

MORE PRIZES.

Even if you don't find "The Girl With the New Fall Shoes" you may win a prize. That is you stand a good opportunity of winning $10 if you're a girl and happen to be wearing the smartest shoes that "The Girl With the New Fall Shoes" sees as she strolls along.

And the first 25 girls wearing new Fall shoes seen by "The Girl With the New Fall Shoes" after her capture each will be presented with a book of 27 tickets for amusements at Revere Beach.

CHILDREN RETURN FROM MORGAN MEMORIAL CAMP

After two months at the 680 Acre Fresh Air Camp of the Morgan Memorial at South Athol, 150 children of the South End have returned together with about twenty workers who had charge of them during the Summer.

The children were weighed before leaving Athol and it was found that every child made some gain in weight, some as high as ten pounds. The aggregate weight gain was close to 500 pounds, due to wholesome and abundant farm food andn regular hours.

Many of the older children who devoted two hours each week to industrial training brought home some of the products they created—rugs, toys and woodwork. At harvest time the families of all the children will receive vegetables raised in the children's gardens, where they spent several hours each week.

AMERICAN COACH CO. OPENS TERMINAL TODAY

Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Mayor James M. Curley, and the members of the City Council and numerous State and City officials, today were to attend the formal opening of the first motor coach terminal in New England, operated by the American Coach Company, Inc., at Park square.

The American Coach Company has lines operating from its terminal to Lawrence, New Bedford, Fall River, Providence, R. I.; Hartford, Ct.; Keene, N. H.; Albany, and New York City, N. Y.

MORIARTY REPORTS 12 UNIONS WANT PEACE

In a report to the committee of seven of the Building Trades Employers' Association Acting Mayor James A. Moriarty stated that he had conferred with 12 of the trades affected by the Boston building situation and that he expected they would join in a general agreement to replace the present peace pact. Mr. Moriarty declared that he is continuing his efforts to gain the opinion of the remaining eight trades on the subject and expects a complete report by Saturday.

STILL BLOWS UP, KILLS 1, SERIOUSLY INJURES 2

Ansonia, Ct., Aug 27 (A.P.).—One man is dead, another dying, and a third seriously burned as the result of the explosion of a 100-gallon still here. Flames caused by the explosion practically destroyed a four-family dwelling house and set fire to the rear of a five-family tenement. Nine families were driven out by the fire. The loss is estimated at $12,000.

FIND HER AND YOU'LL HAVE $100 SMILE

Here's the nose, mouth and chin of "the Girl with the New Fall Shoes." Spend a little time fixing them in your mind and join in the hunt at Revere Beach Saturday. You'll be happy if you're the first to identify her.

ROXBURY GIRL, AUTO VICTIM, ONLY BRUISED

While crossing Dudley street at Adams street, Roxbury, Louise Mantilla, aged 15, No. 393 Dudley street, ran in front of an automobile and was struck before the driver of the car could bring it to a stop. At City Hospital she was found to be suffering from bruises of the right side of the body.

WOMAN HELD ON RUM CHARGE IN REVERE RAID

Special Officer Cronin of the Revere vice squad with other officers raided the premises at No. 44 Marshall st., Revere, and seized about 50 gallons of mixed liquor, a complete "splitting" outfit and a quantity of labels for bottles. They also arrested Mrs. Pauline Marino of No. 16 Temple st., Revere, charged with the violation of the liquor laws.

This new Sunshine Soda Cracker

NOWADAYS sensible folks seem to be avoiding trick health foods and coming back to common-sense eating. The table at the right is a complete justification for this.

It is surprising how really good the normal old time diet really is for replenishing brain or brawn.

Notice how high this Soda Cracker ranks as a food, and particularly in the right hand column under "Energy value."

So that aside from its delicious eating quality, this Sunshine Soda Cracker is a good thing for you.

Made in a new way—
The Full Grain Process

Within the last year, and after months of trial and study, Sunshine Bakeries have perfected a way of making soda crackers better. Better in several ways, in flavor, in texture, and in looks.

We are a little jealous of this method, a bit proud, maybe, because there are several baking innovations involved in it.

The blending of the flour, the handling of the dough (something new), and in securing uniformity day in and day out.

The test of any baking process, of course, is in the cracker itself.

We honestly think that you will like this new soda cracker, which you can recognize by its special shape, even before you eat it.

Note the shape. 3 good reasons for the notched sides (patented):
1. Splits in two for sandwiches.
2. Less crumbling.
3. In baking, the notches form many vent-holes in the sheet of crackers: Result — more thorough baking and better flavor.

RAISE IN PHONE RATES RAPPED AT SAUGUS

Resolutions Asking Re-Opening of Hearing to Be Sent to Governor Fuller

Five hundred citizens of Saugus met in the town hall and unanimously adopted resolutions condemning the increase in telephone rates granted by the Public Utilities Commission and asking Governor Fuller to reopen the telephone rate hearing. The resolutions also condemned the attitude of the telephone company relative to service in Saugus.

The speakers at the hearing were William O'Brien of the Public Utilities Commission, Samuel Silverman, assistant corporation counsel for Boston; Mayor Roger Bakeman of Peabody, Mayor W. R. Stopford of Beverly, Selectman Cowan of Stoneham and Selectman C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus, chairman of the citizens' protest committee, who presided.

Ballots for a referendum on Saugus service have been distributed to subscribers.

Subscribers to Vote on Salem Phone Scramble

Representatives of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company met officials of Salem, Danvers, Peabody, Beverly and Marblehead in the rooms of the public utility commissioners at the State House to consider a method of securing from the subscribers of these communities an expression of opinion on whether they prefer abolition of the new service under which they pay five cents a call to Salem, or restoration of the old service as a part of the Salem telephone area.

It was agreed that if any community votes "yes" on the new service, it shall stand. It was also agreed that no stated percentage of the subscribers shall be set up.

CANTON OFFICIALS FLEE, SITUATION GROWS GRAVE

San Francisco, Aug. 26 (A.P.)—Cables received tonight from Canton, China, some considerably delayed, indicate a tense situation there following the assassination last week of Liu Chung-Hoi, finance minister of the Canton government. Many government officials are reported resigning or leaving the city.

A cable dated yesterday says communistic troops attacked Kong Moon and were repulsed with heavy losses.

"HIGHWAY ROBBERY"

That is what the housewives of Greater Boston and the State call the new schedule of increased rates granted the telephone company. Fight the injustice and rebuke the Public Utilities Commission by signing this petition and thus register your personal protest.

TELEPHONE PETITION

TO GOVERNOR FULLER:

We, the undersigned, subscribers of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, voice our protest against the increase of rates for telephone service as granted by the Public Utilities Commission of Massachusetts, and petition that the former schedule of rates be restored immediately.

NAME ADDRESS

NOTE—Paste this petition at top of long sheet of paper and obtain as many signatures as possible. Kindly see that names and addresses are written clearly and on one side of paper only. Send petition to the Boston Evening American, Winthrop Square, Boston, and they will be forwarded to Massachusetts' City of Massachusetts.

MANY ASK WHY FULLER DROPS PHONE FIGHT

Assistant Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman made public today the list of cities and towns that have joined the protest against increased telephone rates. With the list he issued the following statement:

"The following cities and towns have formally signed the referendum card sent out by the Mayors' Club of Massachusetts. Many Mayors and selectmen have called upon the telephone, stating that as soon as their city councils or boards of selectmen meet, they will forward the signed card.

"Many Mayors and selectmen are on vacation. I should say that in addition to the signed cards, about 25 to 30 officials have called up, signifying their intention to sign the card.

"We are receiving in this office from 10 to 15 letters a day demanding that Governor Fuller take some action. Many inquire why Governor Fuller has not continued his efforts to get lower telephone rates, as was indicated by his statement on the day the increases were made public.

WOMAN FAVORS DUCKING BOARD MEMBERS

"They had a Tea Party in Boston some years back," said Mrs. Winifred M. Buckley, president of the Housekeepers' Club of Massachusetts, at a spirited anti-telephone rate meeting in Dorchester last night. "They tossed chests of tea into the water in their indignation at that time.

"It's too bad there isn't some of that same feeling lingering so that we housewives could dump the members of the Public Utilities Commission into the harbor and give them a good sound ducking for boosting telephone rates so outlandishly high.

"The commission and the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company try to hoodwink us with the claim that the telephone company needed the money.

MOST TO BIG COMPANY.

"Right in the records of the rate hearing and set forth with emphasis in the scholarly brief filed by E. Mark Sullivan, corporation counsel for the city of Boston, are figures showing that the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the parent corporation, owns most of the stock of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, 88 per cent. of it.

"In other words the biggest part of the increased revenue will go to the American Telephone Company.

PETITION BOMBARDMENT.

"The whole affair smells to heaven. Wait until the bills for the new rates begin coming in the first of September. That's when you will hear a howl.

"We must keep on with our petitions. We will bombard Governor Fuller with them. We are going to put this across."

Finds All Eager to Add Their Protests

Unsolicited and spurred solely by his sense of the injustice of the increased telephone rates, A. W. Drake, a night worker, who lives at No. 61 Bay State avenue, Somerville, went among his neighbors in his few leisure hours during the day and harvested two yards of signatures to the protest against the outrageous grant of the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Drake's petition is the neatest submitted to date.

"If Governor Fuller, the Public Utilities Commission or the New England Telephone Company are in doubt about public sentiment they ought to go from door to door as I did. Everybody was eager to sign.

"Will I sign the petition? Well I guess I will. It's an outrage to jump rates as they have! That is the spirit in which most of the women greeted me.

"I'll sign and jump on the new rate schedule with both feet,' was the way Mrs. C. H. Clark of No. 218 Willow avenue, West Somerville, expressed it. She said she would go to court and fight her rights rather than pay the increase.

"Others were just as incensed. I told them all to sign as neatly and clearly as they could. That's how the petition happens to look so neat. One woman's hands were wet. She had been washing and I asked her to dry them before she signed.

"I got this petition filled by canvassing three streets in my neighborhood only. Others can do likewise. Hundreds are waiting to sign and voice their protest, but don't know how to go about it. I never encountered bitterer sentiment. Something has got to be done about it. It's a raw steal of the people's money."

AUTOIST NEAR DEATH AFTER DANVERS CRASH

Danvers, Aug. 27.—William Gavin of South Peabody is on the danger list at Thomas Hospital, Peabody, as a result of an automobile accident on Prince st., here, in which he suffered a possible fracture of the skull.

The owner and operator, Joseph Santorella of Greenwood road, Peabody, was cut slightly over the right eye, and Bertha Wilkins of Martin ct., Danvers, was cut on the forehead when the machine in which the three were riding, in taking a turn, struck a tree.

PRESIDENT TO HUNT PILGRIM ANCESTORS

President Coolidge is a student of genealogy, and graveyards are his studios.

On nearly every automobile ride during his stay at Swampscott he has visited one or more cemeteries and in some of them he has discovered traces of his ancestors.

Tomorrow the President and Mrs. Coolidge will sail on the yacht Mayflower to Plymouth to view the landing place of the Pilgrims, and no doubt he will make a tour of the "homes of the dead." The Presidential party expects to arrive at Plymouth at 10:30 o'clock.

For years those closest to the President have been at sea when the question of his fad, or avocation, was discussed. A Washington hostess came near to it one night in getting him to admit, ironically, that his hobby was "running for office."

His stay at Swampscott has nearly demonstrated that if the President has any fad it is early New England landmarks and ancient graveyards.

New England abounds in genealogists. Mayflower descendants, or persons trying to be Daughters of the Revolution and that sort of thing run the Elks, Odd Fellows and K. of C.'s a close second.

Work Started on Commonwealth Avenue Main

The work of laying the new 48-inch watermain under the walk in the middle of Commonwealth avenue is under way after three weeks of preliminary work of getting the huge pipes in position. In a short time arrangements will have to be made for the temporary removal of the statues of William Lloyd Garrison, General Glover and Alexander Hamilton, which lie in the route of the pipe laying.

The new main will continue down Commonwealth avenue, across the Public Garden and the Common to Tremont street. It will provide water for downtown Boston and will insure against the service being interrupted by any accident to the main under Beacon street, which was laid 75 years ago.

ODOR OF CIDER NO PROOF OF DRINKING

Concord, Aug. 27.—The odor of cider on a man's suit is not convicting evidence in drunken driving cases, according to the decision of Judge Prescott Keyes, who acquitted Dr. J. F. Humphreville, No. 176 Church street, Watertown, of charges of being drunk and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

After pleading not guilty, Dr. Humphreville, who is 50 years old and a veterinary, explained the zig-zagging of his machine on Massachusetts avenue, Lexington, was caused as he wiped the windshield while the auto was in motion.

As to the smell of liquor on his clothing, the doctor explained that the day before he had tapped a barrel of cider in New Hampshire and in doing so his suit became fairly saturated and smelled of liquor.

GAS PRICE CUT FAILS TO HELP AUTOIST

Practically all the big oil companies announce a two cent cut to 16 cents a gallon in the wholesale gasoline price in certain New England States. Motorists in these States, however, will not benefit by the cut but will continue to pay 20 cents a gallon.

For the present the Standard Oil cut applies to Massachusetts and Rhode Island, while the Texas Company cut is effective in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

A telegram of protest because Vermont was not included in the States affected by the Standard Oil reduction has been sent that company by Governor Franklin S. Billings.

Similar wholesale cuts in other States are reported. The Atlantic Refining Company has clipped one cent off the price in Pennsylvania and Delaware. This makes the tank wagon price 18 cents and the service station 21 cents, plus the two cent tax. The Tidewater rate in those States is also cut to 18 cents.

A survey shows scores of New York cities are paying from three to five cents a gallon less than the year's peak prices in the middle of July. The average price in 30 representative cities, however, is still about five cents a gallon above the low level hit last Summer. Oil business leaders deny a trade war is on but admit a fight to obtain all business offered.

TODAY

at night, is foolishness at all times—especially after fifty.

SLASHING OF gasoline prices continues in the east and elsewhere. Standard Oil, Tidewater Oil, Gulf Refining and the Texas Company are having a costly fight.

Later, presumably, they will get together in the old quiet way and motor owners will pay back what they are saving now, with compound interest.

Nevertheless, if you haven't an automobile, get one. Don't be a bird without wings.

MARK SULLIVAN says that if the miners don't strike, many coal mines will be closed, anyhow. Expecting a strike, mine owners have accumulated great coal supplies, and will close down for a while during the marketing of those supplies.

That's not a pleasant prospect for the miners. If they strike, they will be out of work. If they don't strike, they will be out of work. Perhaps the President can give mine owners some advice on that matter.

Love's Blindness by Elinor Glyn

Levy, Hubert and Ralph, United by Common Bond, Wait as Vanessa Hovers at Brink of Death

LORD HUBERT ST. AUSTEL, confronted with the task of raising a huge sum of money quickly to protect old friends who have invested in his pet project, goes to BENJAMIN LEVY, a money lender. The latter refuses to aid except on condition that Lord St. Austel marry his daughter, VANESSA LEVY. Lord Hubert promises to make his decision overnight. Vanessa falls in love with Hubert at first sight at the opera, where he decides he does not care for ALLICE, DUCHESS OF LINCOLNWOOD. Hubert tells his friend and companion, COL. RALPH DANGERFIELD, of his decision, and Levy informs Vanessa that she is to marry the very man she had fallen in love with. Hubert slips a ring on Vanessa's finger at their engagement dinner, but does not kiss her and she wonders at his coldness. He tells Allice of his engagement and learns that Vanessa had gazed at him adoringly at the opera. Hubert and Vanessa are married, and his coldness continues. Not until another man points out her beauty does Hubert notice Vanessa, and then with an awakened fury he answers, "That is my wife!" Hubert is horrified to discover that he is beginning to care for his unwanted wife. OSCAR ISAACSON, Levy's clerk, who had been laughed at when he asked for Vanessa's hand, becomes a lurking menace in her life, trailing her everywhere. Vanessa, insulted by Hubert's friends, is on the point of leaving him forever when she discovers she is about to become a mother. Vanessa and Hubert quarrel over the attentions CHARLES LANGLEY is paying her. The quarrel grows worse, and Vanessa, jealous, follows Hubert and Allice into the garden. A shot rings out. Allice falls and Hubert, believing Vanessa guilty, orders her from his home. Hubert learns that Isaacson fired the shot, when the latter is captured. He realizes he loves Vanessa more than ever and tries to find her, but she has gone home to her father. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XX.

(Copyright, 1925, by Elinor Glyn. All Rights Reserved.)

WOULD she live or die—? The specialists, summoned in haste, could not say yet. The little life which had announced its coming so faintly, had returned to those angels who watch over such things—and Vanessa lay for days with fevered pink cheeks and delirious eyes, babbling of her husband and her jealousy—and the Duchess, and other anguishing things—and the three men had watched and waited and—prayed. And numberless silver threads had appeared in Hubert's dark brown hair.

Was God going to punish him so hideously?

Was she going where he could not tell her of his frightful remorse and grief, of his passionate love and worship, of his humility and agony?

No one knew.

That Allice of Lincolnwood was rapidly convalescing, an interesting and romantic invalid, that Oscar Isaacson had been removed to an asylum for the incurably insane that society had been thrilled and interested, mattered not a jot to any of the three, watching Vanessa, and whether she lived or died was the beginning and ending of things that counted.

At last she was pronounced possibly out of danger, but absolute quiet was ordered. No agitating circumstances were to obtrude upon her returning consciousness.

The three men had become close friends during the period of misery. Foolish outside things of prejudice and class had vanished. Hubert knew his father-in-law for what he was—a wise and honest gentleman; and Benjamin Levy had pierced through the crust of ten hundred years of inherited pride and found his son-in-law a human man.

As for Ralph Dangerfield, he was

ATTACKER TRAPPED IN SWAMP

Ellsworth Posse Surrounds Alleged Hiding Place of Woman's Assailant

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 27.—Posses started at daybreak to beat through a swamp at Ellsworth Falls, confident that the fugitive they sought, the assailant of Mrs. Blaine Davis of this city, soon would be captured.

All night armed men surrounded the swamp where a man answering the description of the fugitive disappeared after refusing to answer questions of a resident. Two hundred had participated in the early night search, during which Mrs. Davis' husband fired wildly when he came upon the stranger near the edge of the swamp at dusk. The swamp is triangular and about a quarter of a mile in area.

"Johnson" is the man named and described by Clifford Bunker of Gouldsboro, held here as the other person to the crime, in which Mrs. Davis was bound, gagged and left to drown in her bath tub.

Leon Brown attempted to interrogate the man, but at his first question the suspect dashed back into the thicket.

His description is said to tally with that of the fugitive.

The alarm was immediately given and sounding of the fire whistles quickly summoned more than 200 armed men. The man is now believed cornered in the swamp between the Old Landing road and the Waltham road

Golden Trinkets Left on Tomb of 'Unknown'

London, Aug 27 (A.P.)—The crypt underneath the tomb of the "unknown soldier" in Westminster Abbey fast is becoming a veritable store of gold and silver, tributes laid on the tomb by visitors to the Abbey.

One of the vergers in Westminster some time ago noticed a gold brooch lying on the tomb. It was his belief it had been dropped inadvertently. On following days he found some rings. A close watch revealed many women had developed the habit of leaving some personal trifles in gold or silver

PRIEST SAVES SACRED HOST IN BLAZE

Montreal, Aug. 27 (I.N.S.).—Two fires of determined origin kept residents of Montreal in a state of excitement early today.

Fire swept Molson's Brewery Main House, the Canadian Pacific Railway's east end freight house and damaged St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, one of the oldest churches in the city.

Fr. Lafontaine risked his life by fighting his way through clouds of smoke and fire to save the Sacred Host.

A few hours later, fire destroyed stable and wood stocks in the Wilson Brothers' wood and coal yard.

These fires followed the serious fire of Monday, which levelled twenty houses on Ontario street, making sixty persons homeless

Walls and flooring at the main entrance to St. Mary's church were damaged by the first fire and it was during the progress of the flames that Fr. La Fontaine, assistant to the pastor, performed his heroic deed. He carried the Sacred Host to the chapel of the convent of Our Lady of Good Counsel. He was nearly overcome by smoke.

UPHOLDS WOOING BY WOMEN

'Honey' Gripping Tale of Love Begins in Boston Evening American Tomorrow

Why can't the woman pursue the man, tear him away from the love of another, and hold him to worship, to enjoy, to do as she likes with him? Gerda Arden did it, and it seemed easy.

Then, then, in the story of Gerda—of any woman who is bold enough to adopt her methods. Then married, she found herself yearning for a love that would equal that she could give in return.

Beautiful, just under thirty, with a physical being that seemed to have been ripened under the skies of the Southern seas, Gerda found herself settled in the home of her second husband, Thomas Macklyn, a leather merchant. Business and pleasure, she soon realized, did not fit her temperament. She discovered that to be loved as she wished meant one thing—another man, and this time the right one

FAILED TO UNDERSTAND.

Came into her life one day a young author, Jerrold Freyne, a college chum of her husband. She had read his works—his latest was a cold treatise on love called "The Gift of Continence," a straitlaced, puritanical exposé on of how love should be handled. She didn't agree with the books, and she couldn't see how such a man could have written such a thing.

To her, Freyne was the one man in the universe who could give her the love she craved. Strong and manly, physically perfect, willed to do as he liked, and yet flexible enough if properly handled. The man for her—and she must have him.

MAN MORE STARTLED.

Freyne was engaged to another girl, a sweet-cold product of aristocracy, but what of it? The more interesting to win.

They met; they met again; and they made plans for another meeting. She was thrilled with a strange love. He was startled with a stranger love. He had not more than touched her hand. With all his desire he had not kissed her, and yet he too began to know that there was a love that was wholly his, for the taking.

At least Freyne began to regard his wedding promises as too hasty. He had not looked around he excused himself.

REALIZED LOVE.

"Jerrold," she cried, one night "Jerrold, do you think I am a child? Can't you understand that I know what I am doing when I offer myself to you. Let's be plain, and understand each other."

The die was cast. They were alone in her home. She had placed to his lips the cup of sweetness, and he would drink!

They embraced, their lips met, and for once in the life of each there came the full realization of love.

Not like the ordinary love story is theirs. It is the most thrilling depiction of the working of the hearts of a man and a woman ever written. It is and it starts in serial form Friday, August 28, in the Boston Evening American.

"A TASTE OF HONEY"

To those who read every instalment, it will prove to be a taste of the sweetest thing in love, something that you'll like, and something better than you expect to find between the covers of a "best seller."

PERSISTENCE WON FOR THIS BEAUTY

Miss Muriel Bowers of Cliftondale, declared winner of the fifth of the Boston Evening American Beauty contests at Revere Beach Miss Bowers had been an an entrant in each of the four previous contests before she was awarded the silver cup and credited with five points toward the big contest of September 12, when the winner will be awared $100 and the title "Miss New England."

BEAUTIES COMPETE TONIGHT

Sixth of Boston American Contests to Take Place at Revere Beach

Bathing girls of every type will have another chance to win recognition as beauties tonight at Revere. The sixth "parade of the beauties" will be conducted by the Boston Evening American at the Nautical Gardens, Revere Beach

To the girl whose [illegible] of face [illegible] the judges will award a silver cup. And she will be entered with the greatest award for the final contest when the title of "Miss New England" and $100 in gold will be awarded the winner.

TRY AGAIN.

Girls who have been in the five previous preliminary contests and failed to receive a prize should enter again tonight. Muriel Bowers, Revere's new winner, won with her fifth attempt. And Pauline Goulin won the third time she tried

Tonight a judge will be Sam Smith, noted examination expert

Girls from all sections of New England are eligible to compete tonight. Any girl can enter the contest by registering with her bathing suit, at the entrance of the Nautical Gardens ballroom at 8:30 tonight.

Every girl owes it to herself to enter tonight in an attempt to earn five points toward the big final contest when New England's most beautiful bathing girl will be crowned "Miss New England." This will take place on September 12.

OTHER PRELIMINARIES.

Other preliminaries will be September 1, September 3, September 8 and September 10. And any girl who hasn't already won a preliminary may compete. Of course you don't absolutely need to win one of the preliminaries to take part in the finals. But think how much nicer it will be to be able to exhibit a lovely silver cup as well as the big prize of $100 at the end of the Boston Evening American's Bathing Beauty Contest.

The Bathing Beauty Contest, is not, however, the Boston Evening American's only Revere Beach contest. The Dieting Contest is still going on.

Dieting Contests will be tomorrow, August 28, August 31, September 1 and September 4. Books of tickets will be found buried in the sands along Revere Beach, between Revere and Beach streets, about high water mark, on these days. These tickets will be good up to 2 p. m. of the date they are found

THUGS DRILL 3 SAFES; GET NOTHING

Three safes in the general offices of the Colonial Filling Stations in Beacham street, Everett, drew crackmen last night. All were drilled and one was finally opened. But that in which the strong box is kept withstood the onslaught and so the robbers got nothing for their efforts.

The crackmen forced an entrance through a rear window on the first floor of the building, then forced a vestibule and forced a door. This gave them entrance to the stairs which lead to the offices on the second floor. That the thugs were expert is indicated through the clean cut drilling job they did.

In reality the safe in which several thousands of dollars reposed is a series of safes within each other, three in number. Try as they might the petermen couldn't get within it. And the one safe they did open had nothing of value. This morning employees of the company discovered the break, took an account of stock and then notified the police. No clews were secured

BOY, 5, LONGS FOR GOOD HOME

He's only a little fellow just turned five

His name is Donald Mason and he lives with his grandmother, Mrs. Grace Clarke, at No. 18 Haviland street., Back Bay.

The trouble is that there seems to be no place in the world that Donald can really call home.

Grandmother is a widow and has children of her own and she is afraid that her slender income is not sufficient to look after two Donald's needs, not so much at present, but later when he begins to grow up.

Everyone who sees him loves him. He is the kind of baby that just seems to fit in a mother's arms but at the same time he is a regular boy who loves to be out of doors, to go to the beach and dig in the sand or sail a toy ship in a pond.

"JERRY" FARRAR TO ENTER COMIC OPERA

New York, Aug. 27 (A.P.).—Geraldine Farrar is going to be a comic opera star. Her premiere in this new line of endeavor will come in New York some time this season. Her manager, Alfred T. Aarons, who is associated in the venture with A. L. Erlanger, said contracts were signed yesterday. The comic opera is being written by a composer of international repute, whose name is withheld

70 POLES EXECUTED BY SOVIET IN REPRISALS

London, Aug. 27.—Seventy Poles, prisoners in Russian jails, have been executed by Soviet officials at Minsk, said dispatches today from Warsaw. The executions were reprisals for the recent execution of three communists in Warsaw, the dispatch said.

B. & M. MAKES DIVISION CENTRE AT GREENFIELD

Greenfield, Mass., Aug. 27.—Greenfield will be greatly increased in importance as a railroad centre with the consolidation of divisions and other changes in the policy of the Boston & Maine railroad. The Fitchburg and Berkshire divisions will be consolidated, bringing here the officials and the forces which have been stationed at Fitchburg and North Adams.

BREWERY INCLUDED IN NEW BEDFORD SEIZURE

New Bedford, Aug. 27.—Two trips of the patrol wagon were required to cart to the Central police station the fruits of the largest seizure of illegal beer ever made in the North End. Thirty-five full cases, 30 gallons ready to be bottled and all the equipment of a small brewery were captured at the tenement occupied by Albert Bouthillier, No. 2588 Acushnet avenue.

WOONSOCKET WOMAN, GAS VICTIM, WILL LIVE

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Alma Daniel, forty-four, of this city, is in Woonsocket Hospital in a semi-conscious condition as the result of being overcome by gas. Mrs. Daniel, a widow, was found on the kitchen floor with the windows closed and the gas turned on in the stove. The discovery was made by her son, Feliz. She is expected to recover.

BODY OF DROWNED BOY IS WASHED UP

Fall River, Aug. 27. (A. P.)—The body of Horace Messier, fourteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Messier of No. 84 Danforth street, Providence, was found upon the beach at Warren's Point R. I., 1,000 feet from the point where the boy slipped from a large rock into deep water last Thursday.

SCHOONER VICTORIA S. PROBABLY TOTAL LOSS

Portland, Me., Aug. 28 (A. P.).—The four-masted schooner Victoria S., formerly the David Cohen, ashore on the Virginia coast, probably will be a total loss, Walter F. Reed, her owner, has been advised from Norfolk. The crew landed safely. The schooner was bound to New York from Georgetown, S. C., with lumber. She was launched at Bennyville, Me., in 1918.

ARLINGTON MAN MAKES MODEL OF OLD FRIGATE

William M. Wareham, No. 853 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, has put [illegible] a model of a frigate constructed [illegible] which a company is now being formed to raise sufficient funds to complete. It required at least three months of hard work on the part of Mr. Wareham to complete the task

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT FORCE OF DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

All day the news of the world flashes into the office of the Boston Evening American from whence it is broadcast over Radio Station WNAC four times daily. The baseball results of the day are broadcast at 7:30 P. M.

KRAZY KAT IS VERY HAPPY

Krazy Kat walked into the Radio Editor's office the other day and his face was covered with smiles. It looked as though something very pleasant had happened to him, because he was indeed very happy.

Tripping lightly over to the Radio Editor's desk, Krazy said rather shyly, "I have some very good news." The Radio Editor immediately became interested and replied, "Well, that's good, Krazy, what is it anyway?"

Krazy then carefully unrolled two little letters he had received from some nice little girls. And so we are printing the letters here, so that you little boy and girl readers can see what made Krazy Kat so happy.

Dear Krazy Kat:

We would like to join your Klub We are twins almost eleven years old. Our birthday is September second and we are going to have a party, too. You said you didn't see many St. Bernard dogs now. We have one. He is only a puppy. We are teaching him to do tricks. We hope Ignatz will sing Monday night and will not cry. We like Ignatz and we love you. We live in New York, but we are staying with our grandmother.

Evelyn and Marion Douglass,
Box 56, Boot Pond, Plymouth, Mass.

Dear Sir:

I listened to the Krazy Kat to night and decided to join right away I imagine from Ignatz's squeaky voice that I could draw a picture of him and here it is. (Picture in drawn) My birthday in January 31. I am nine years old. We just got our radio put up yesturday. I love to ride horse back and do so every day. I hope the oliser who had the cold is better now. Do you know what song Ignat is going to sing on Monday. Ignatz is very funny with "It Ain't Going Rain No More" on Monday. I have got four brothers and of whom is going to write. Please excuse the bad writting. I have no time to write any more.

Yours truly,
Miss E. Burr

P. S.—Please do not show Ignat his picture, because his feelings would probably be hurt.

THIS is the first of a series of articles on hunting and fishing in New England. Another article will appear in an early issue.

By EDDIE DONDERO

"ANY member of the Boston Police Department who has been awarded a silver badge for marksmanship has accomplished something worth talking about," declared Police Commissioner today. "Every member of this battalion besides being proficient in the use of the rifle is trained in the use of the Colt machine gun, the Thompson submarine gun and the riot gun or French gun so-called."

THE commissioner, who puts in many a busy day at police headquarters, spends what little time he has to himself in the Maine woods. He is a real sportsman, likes to hunt and fish and goes about the task in a workmanlike manner. He is one of the few hunters who get the results.

"The greatest sport of 'em all is when you disappear in the untamed wilderness, with an excellent chance of being eaten by bears," said the police commissioner. "Then you have to be a marksman and a good sharpshooter or your life isn't worth a dime.

"On a hunting trip all you need is the equipment, consisting mainly of two guns and a box of cartridges. YOU have to be a marksman; a good one, too.

"Then, again, you have to know your book about how the game acts. The use of the rifle is another big factor—a dead aim and then let it go without hesitating the least bit, that's the way to get the results."

IT was not so very long ago that Police Commissioner Wilson and 99 members of department riot gun battalion were awarded silver medals on the results of the annual gun practice at Fort Standish, Captain Louis E. Lutz and the Police Commissioner led the pack as when it came to marksmanship.

The Boston Police department full quota is 1981 members. About 1200 members have served in the Army or Navy of the United States. Five years ago about 200 officers were selected for riot training because of their qualifications in the use of the machine gun, shot gun, rifle and revolver.

The police commissioner and Captain Lutz hold annual outdoor practice in the use of the first three weapons at Fort Standish Boston Harbor, every officer having practice in the use of these weapons twice during this period. Indoor revolver and gallery rifle practice is held annually, commencing about December 15 and ending the last day of February.

The next article in this series is on "Why Hunters Fail to Get Results."

GOSSIP OF THE SQUARED CIRCLE

THE New York Boxing Commission has made itself look ridiculous by refusing to recognize Fidel LaBarba as world's flyweight champ on following his brilliant victory over Frankie Genaro, whom he beat a hundredcen in the Louisiana State ballot as king of all the fly weights upon the untimely death of Pancho Villa.

"LEBARBA is too young", is the verdict of Messrs. Farley, Muldoon et al. Fidel is only nineteen years of age. When a youth beats a champion, he becomes the title holder regardless of his age. LaBarba will be recognized as world's champion in every State but New York, and in New York State everybody but the Boxing Commission will give the Coast youngster the honor to which he is entitled, as a result of his win over Genaro.

Jim Toland's Gym was jammed by fight bugs who were eager to get a close-up of Tiger Flowers in action.

Another crowd dropped in to see Jock Malone work at Kelley & Hayes' Gym.

Joe Hall, colored welterweight from Buffalo who is here with Flowers, looks like a classy boxer. He is all set for his eight rounder with Ted Smith.

Tom Goodwin couldn't see use a suitable opponent for Al Mello and as a result the Lowell welterweight won't be on Friday night's card.

Jim Maloney is resting up down the Cape, but will be back in town next week and will resume training. Maloney doesn't intend to permit a few punches on the chin to cut short his flatic career.

Nate Lewis is in town with Jock Malone. Lewis first came here as pilot for Charley White when the Chicago lightweight was knocking all of our brave New England fighters out of the picture.

Walk Miller thinks that a Greb-Flowers bout in Boston would prove a big drawing card. Jack Malone has purchased an airplane. Now that he intends to use it Friday night. Jack thinks the all-time record of 20 minutes in the air will be shattered. He want to get in the record books while the getting is good. If so his plan to get started in New York.

And now—a Thunderbolt for men! A Thunderbolt of highest voltage fairly booming with the opportunity to save. Nor will all the savings be confined to men, for with so unusual a value and one so certain not to be duplicated, will not the women, too, see the advantage of anticipating birthdays and Christmas, and meet also the demands of sons at school and college.

Quite as remarkable as the value is the variety from which to choose. There are actually 72 different patterns and practically every pattern is offered in six color combinations making roughly a total of 432 distinctly different neckties—every one good looking, swagger and durable, designed and made for Fall, 1925.

JOHNSTON AND GRIFFIN BATTLE AUSSIES

SEMI-FINAL MATCH FOR WINNERS

Mixed Doubles Title Matches Fill Remainder of Card at Longwood

By FRED C. LANE.

But one match in the National doubles championship takes place at Longwood today. William Johnston and Clarence Griffin, California, battle Gerald Patterson and John Hawkes, Australia, for the right to enter the final round. The upper half match which will find Richards and Williams disputing the claim of the Kinsey brothers will be played tomorrow.

The Longwood committee is giving over the day for the running off of the national mixed doubles title matches. With the appearance of women net stars in the tournament, Longwood now boasts of the presence of every tennis player of note in Europe and America with the exception of Helen Wills.

Tennis notables continued to be teased around in the third round Bill Tilden and Sandy Weiner, both of Philadelphia, went the way of the Snodgrass-Westbrook, LaCoste and Borotra teams when William Johnston and Clarence Griffin, California pair, trimmed the Quakers in a five set match, 7—9, 6—1, 8—7, 6—4, 6—1

The result could hardly be called a surprise. The Coast pair played good tennis in the early rounds and it was conceded that they had a chance of winning.

If Tilden had been at the top of his game the outcome might have been different. Weiner played better than ever before. Were he not taking the strain from Tilden his game would have been even steadier but, as it was, he was ever a thorn in the side of the Californians. Tilden, though, was away off form.

George Lott and Luke Williams downed the Australian team of Patterson and Hawkes five sets before making their exit. The scores were 6—3, 2—6, 6—3, 6 2, 6 3. Going into the third set, the Chicago team was two sets up and looked like winners. They became unsteady with victory within their reach and after losing the third set, were never in the running.

Lewis White and Louis Thalheimer from Texas threw opportunity to the wind in playing the Kinsey brothers and as a result took a five set match that was finished with darkness fast closing in on the courts.

H. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards hardly exerted themselves winning over the Spanish combination of Manuel Alonso and Leon Planquer, 6—1, 6—6, 6—2, 6—3

Three Races on Bangor Card

By GUS DALY

Bangor, Me., Aug. 27.—Three fast classes are scheduled for this afternoon's light harness racing at the 2.15 pace, the 2.16 trot and the five for All pace

The latter is the day's feature and will bring to the wire a half dozen speed merchants whose chances are rated as being about equal. The Boston mare Eva Dewey is foremost in the limelight and will get the financial support of the large delegation of Bay State sportsmen present. The 2:15 pace has a bang up field of ride steppers and the 2:16 trot is filled in a like manner.

Yesterday's card was a decidedly interesting one. Joe Johnson drove Lucy Earl to a win in the three-year-old trot after Colleen Moore had grabbed the first heat. Baily Fleming came all the way from the Marshfield, Mass., fair to pilot Major Morris, who finished outside the money Far North beat the "Tub" pacer Bernie Hoyt, and a bunch of fair wagglers.

Harry Putnam, a new comer from the West, drove his field into the ground in the 2:30 pacing stake while Lieona annexed the 2:14 State trot.

Life History of Jockey J. Callahan Reads Like Page From Grimm's Fairy Tales

—By John Kieran

THE life history to date of the gentleman known to the racing public as Jockey J. Callahan reads like a page from Grimm's Fairy Tales. Callahan says he intends to retire as a rider within a few years, though there is no particular reason why he should take this step.

He is only thirty-seven years old and he can make 97 or 98 pounds without cutting a single slice of bread from his daily supply of provender. But "Old Man" Callahan is perhaps getting just the least little bit tired of riding in races. He has been at it twenty-three years. He has given his job the best he had, and, in return, the riding career has won him fame and fortune. He is about ready to call it quits.

WHEN J. Callahan takes off the silks he has worn so long he will leave the track with two or three silks slightly out of place, a badly twisted collar bone, a dented elbow, a comfortable fortune and the respect and esteem of everybody who follows the sport of kings.

In twenty-three years of racing nobody has ever hinted that Jockey J. Callahan wasn't riding a horse for all it was worth. In the years to come Johnny will probably get as much satisfaction out of that as out of the money which his honest efforts have brought him.

Where are the brilliant and erratic riders of Callahan's younger days? Hangers-on, most of them. Boys who held fortunes in their slim fingers are now trying to clutch a few thin dimes. The old easy book maxim, "Honesty is the Best Policy," is right, and Johnny Callahan is a shining example of it.

ABOUT twenty-five years ago a little under-sized lad was working as a Western Union messenger boy in Baltimore, the town where he had been born and raised. Somehow or other he had an ambition to be a jockey. He had never been in side on race track, but he had seen pictures on the billboards of horses racing neck and neck down the stretch, and he thought it must be a great life to ride those horses.

It was never anything but an idle dream to him until one day the little fellow got into conversation with an older man at a lunch counter. It was just friendly chatter over a sandwich and a cup of coffee. Finally the man said to the little fellow:

"Would you like to be a jockey?"

The man was W. J. Anderson, a horse owner then racing a few thoroughbreds around Baltimore and Washington. The boy was Johnny

WOULD Johnny Callahan like to be a jockey? It was no simple that it stunned Johnny. The golden opportunity he thought would never arrive was tossed lightly into his lap by an absolute stranger. He found Fortune sitting on a stool at a lunch counter. He was out of his messenger boy's uniform in world's record time and six months later he won his first race as a jockey on a trusted favorite with race-goers. Brilliant riders came and went, rose to fame and disappeared, but "Old Man" Callahan rode along year after year, giving the bettors and backers a ride for their money.

AS Jockey J. Callahan advanced in fame and fortune he associated himself in his new surroundings. Few college graduates have mastered the English language as Johnny Callahan has done. He had but two years' schooling. The rest he picked up himself, reading and studying at night before he turned in at 10 o'clock. He goes to educational lectures as often as he can get an opportunity. It is a pleasure to watch him ride a horse, he does it so well. It's a pleasure to hear him talk, he does that so well, also.

AND now Jockey J. Callahan is thinking of retiring. His years of riding have brought him an ample fortune. He still sticks to the saddle because he loves the thoroughbreds and the racing game, but at thirty-seven a man begins to think of settling down, and a skelton saddle on the back of a flying thoroughbred is not the most quiet place in the world upon which to settle down.

Perhaps Callahan will take up a training career. That will keep him in touch with the game he knows and the thoroughbreds he loves. It will be a loss to the sport if he drops out entirely, for they don't come any better than that fine little gentleman, Jockey J. Callahan

BAD DAY FOR FAVORITES AT NO. RANDALL TRACK

North Randall, O., Aug. 27.—The longest Grand Circuit meeting of the season, lasting 13 days, came to an end with a program of five races. The feature was the 2:28 pace for which Grit McKinney was the favorite, but the winner turned up in the 4-year-old Theodora Guy, an defeated last year but beaten regularly this Summer.

There was another upset in the event for 2-year-old trotters for which the White entry, Wise Worthy, and Peter Hays, ruled favorites. The bay filly, Hollywood Susan, driven by her owner, J. L. Dodge, was much the best and won all three heats without much trouble.

Kentucky Todd, Jr., which had won three races at the meeting was the choice for the 2:18 trot, but failed to make it four straight behind A, from the half-mile tracks, beat him in the first two heats, the favorite managing to nose him out in the final.

Express Cruiser Races On Today

Guilford, Ct., Aug. 27 (A.P.).—Nine boats are entered in the annual express cruiser race for the championship of America, under the auspices of the American Power Boat Association, which will be run here today and tomorrow.

The first heat will be run this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The start will be made opposite the Southern Head Yacht Club, the boats running to a point off the mouth of the Connecticut River at Saybrook, and returning a distance of thirty-nine nautical miles.

Tomorrow afternoon, from the same starting point, they will run to Manhassett Bay to finish at the Gold Cup course. The distance is fifty-five nautical miles.

The Harpoon, entered by Miss B. Cornell of Middletown, who has won the race the last three years, is the favorite. Other boats entered are: The Catherine B., owned by Charles Hinsley of Philadelphia; Sea Crest, James E. Davis of Springfield, Mass.; Lobera, Harris Racke, Naugatuck; Adriel Tos, L. N. Brooks, Chester; Pattie II, R. E. Patterson, Middletown; Romper, A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia; Miss Liberty II., Commodore Humphreys Birce, Buffalo; Rebolou II., Robert D. Seward, New York.

M'TIGUE MAY SIGN TO FIGHT SLATTERY

New York, Aug. 27.—Matchmaker John Leon of the Coney Island Stadium, was so amazed and surprised at the grand showing of Mike McTigue last Saturday evening that he firmly believes McTigue can lick any light heavyweight in the world.

Leon is negotiating for a match between McTigue and Jimmy Slattery to be staged at the Stadium on Tuesday, September 8.

Dr. Whelan Will Be Back to Coach B.U.

Dr. Charles Whelan, head coach of the Boston University football team, is recovering rapidly from the effects of an operation performed last Spring, and will be ready to assume control of the Terrier team on September 15. Dr. Whelan is now recuperating at Nantucket, where he has been for about a week, and will continue for two weeks longer. He has notified the athletic authorities at the university that he will be in first-class shape by the time the season begins.

PIRATES AND BRAVES IN HOT FINALE

By NICK FLATLEY

The Pirates are getting a lot of real practice for the world's series they expect to cut into early in October. There may be more at stake in that classic than there is these afternoons at the Waverly, but the McKechnie pupils will never get any stiffer competition anywhere. The Braves are a tough, rough ball club just now, fully capable of taking the best of them over the hurdles.

The league leaders are a smooth, powerful machine, but they have their tongues hanging out after dividing two games with the Bancrofts.

"These Braves" declare the Cornairs in unison, "are tougher than the Pirates."

This particular series ends this afternoon. It has been marked by two of the tightest, best ball games staged on the local pastures all year, and the windup should be right in line.

Pittsburgh has a fine lead just now, but the team will not be easy until the flag is cinched. That's why the boys are trying so hard. The Braves are digging out from the depths, and don't care what kind of opposition is in the way. Big crowds are turning out these days, and getting the sort of baseball that makes life merry

OUR flying Braves lost the second collision with the almost changes because they couldn't take advantage of a grand opening in the first round. They had the bases choked with only one out, and didn't do a thing. After that bespectacled Lee Meadows didn't give them a chance to pop off.

Bobby Smith, who used to be a big infielder, and is now a great pitcher, deserved a better fate. The Pirates collected a scratchy run in the first and a real one in the ninth, when Johnny Rawlings cracked a fine homer to the flagpole. The stretch in between was merely a perfect lounging exhibition by Robert. He was finely supported, which has grown to be a habit.

Dick Barrett and Gus Feltz, who have been the dynamite in the assault, are having a joint slump with the club, and Lee's mark of less than a run is no matter of runs. The Pirates are offering a brand of top notch chucking thereabouts, and little things like runs seldom count.

Our converted infielder would have won on his brand of pitching in ninety-nine of a hundred games.

BRAVES FIELD is getting to be the graveyard of hefty batting averages. Rogers Hornsby was off over .400 when he brought his cards to town. He collected one hit in thirteen trips to the plate. Hazen Cuyler, wonder years outfielder, has been a hitting fool, as they say, all season long But in two games to date he has made nary a bit in eight journeys to the saucer. Fred Wigwam is a tough place for the hitters, which makes for close ball games.

THE Corsairs didn't get a real hit off Bobby Smith until the eighth, when "Gil" of the same family poked a hot shot to right.

FRANK WILSON was a welcome surprise. He has been playing great ball for Worcester, and brings back the confidence that was the only thing he needed to make good.

LEE MEADOWS pitched a very fine game. He made the boys hit the ball into the dirt, as twenty-one Pirate assists prove.

SMALL Ernie Padgett crashed a tremendous liner to left, late in the game, but the wind had shifted just in time to hold the ball up for Barnhart.

NEW ENGLAND HORSES CLEAN UP AT GLENS FALLS

Glenns Falls, N. Y., Aug. 27.—New England horses won all three races at the annual Washington County Fair at Hudson Falls, N. Y., Massachusetts, Vermont and Connecticut being the winning States.

Elmwood Kid, owned by C. A. Stone of Brandon, Vt., won the 2:12 pace.

Janette Forbes, owned by H. W Stanford of Springfield, Mass., won the 2:20 trot, while Charles Direct, the property of Bert Tucker of Tariffville, Conn., took the 2:09 pace. New England horses took the first three positions in each race except the 2:20 trot when a New York horse captured third money.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Master of Ai Hoff's Champions, and a Most Successful Teacher, Says Chick Evans.

One of the most interesting studies in golf is found through observing the change of backspin on the ball into forward spin. We find this principle over or present in the putt. This is why the blade should always be caused to hit down on the ball rather than straight out through it in putting. The action is a good deal like a draw shot in billiards. The first tendency of the correctly putted ball is to start back-spinning and this causes it to start away for perhaps the first inch of its journey without any roll at all. It then starts rolling with a true forward spin, because all its energy has been applied in one place and in one direction. When the ball is hit a straight slap or perhaps an upward blow its energy is scattered and the ball will wabble on its course Hit down on it and its true overspin will cause it to run straight for the cup.

LOW SCALE OF WEIGHTS HURTS SANDE AT SPA

Saratoga, Aug. 27.—This cool, bright Summer morning, with a gentle breeze stirring the leaves of the elms around the historic track and the sunlight pouring over the green infield and the brown backstretch, Earl Sande read mediatively at the rail and talked of the racing game.

The slim, gentle, sandy-complexioned idol of the racing fans does not had much success in bringing winners under the wire at this meeting. Every jockey likes to win at Saratoga. It's not only a sporting victory, but a social event. A winning mount at the Spa to a jockey is like taking tea at the Ritz to a flapper.

"You know," said Earl, "the scale of weights up here hasn't helped me any, nor has it helped fellows like Clarence Kummer and Laverne Fator and others of the older boys. We can't ride at 110 pounds, and yet the great majority of horses up here have been running with less weight up than that.

"Riding is like boxing, you have to keep at it all the time to keep in top form. So if you don't ride often, you can't ride your best. The handicap is double-barreled; it gets you going and coming.

"No, I don't know I'll go abroad to ride," continued the little jockey, who has two Kentucky Derbys to his credit, 'ons with Zev and one with Flying Ebony. "I understand that Albert Johnson is thinking of going abroad, but I'll stick it out here. The scale of weights will probably be a bit higher at Belmont and some of the other tracks this Fall. I hope to get my share of winning mounts. I can ride at 118 or 114, and I'm not having much trouble holding that weight.

"Yes, sir! a fellow is awful lucky when he can earn a lot of money doing the very thing he likes best in all the world. I like to ride and I love horses. When I get too old or too heavy to ride I'd like to be a trainer. When I think of all the people who have to work hard doing something they don't like for just enough money to keep from starving, I know how lucky I am. Yes, sir!

"There's one thing, though," added Sande, "I've ridden thousands of horses and I guess I know pretty well how they shape up, but if I were a racegoer with all that information I'll bet I'd be broke in a week if I tried to play them.

"Once in a while a horse starts out like a Man o' War and lots of times a solid horse will be in with a bunch of cheap ones. Anybody can pick a winner in a race like that. You're just betting that the horse won't fall. But the ordinary race is a clear gamble.

"A thousand things enter into that so nobody can figure before hand—a bad start, interference, a sulky horse, a slipping saddle girth, a pocket from which you can't get out—but that's what makes it a great game. If the horses all came in on schedule it wouldn't be much sport, would it?"

"I like Belmont Park," said Sande, "and I will certainly be glad when we start running there. Here's hoping for a change in luck."

* * *

Well, they goes for the racing fans, and Sande will certainly be glad when we start running there. Here's hoping for a change in luck.

'TWI' LEAGUE NINES PROVE HONESTY

By JOE CASHMAN.

Tonight's "Twi" program reads: Lowell at Malden, Lawrence at Nashua, and Cornets at Salem.

That's a pretty good card and should furnish more than the average amount of entertainment for the fans.

Chances are 100 to 1, though, that it will seem comparatively tame and drab in comparison with last night's happenings.

The honesty of the circuit was proven on the mid-week eve.

At Tufts Oval, Somerville, Checker and Dilboy played a double-header, the first game of which was one postponed from the first-half race.

If Checker won it would have gone into a tie with Lawrence for second place in the early race, and Ikker would have played the "Millionaires" for the right to take part in the post-season round-robin series.

Yet the "Twis" went out and won, 11 to 3, and killed the chances of a play-off series which would have meant considerable extra money for the contending clubs and league treasury.

At Lynn, where Nashua was battling the Cornets, the boys gave evidence that everything was on the "up and up" with their fists. Not a very gentlemanly method, 'tis true, but quite convincing.

It happened in the eighth inning. Nashua protested the decision that allowed the Cornets to tie the score. The "Millionaires" stormed about the umpires and wailed and, as usual, to no avail.

Then, they started to argue the question with the "Musicans." This continued until Manager Morrissey of the Cornets tried to bring order out of the chaos.

For his trouble, he received Freshaman Gus Whelan's fist in the eye, and Whelan, in return, took a shower of blows from Clements, Cornet's Burler.

Major McPhetres of Lynn, who was present, grew nervous here, and sent in a call for a detail of 40 policemen, who quelled the uprising on arrival.

Such an occurrence is unfortunate, and doesn't help "Twi" ball in the least. It proves, however as we have previously stated, the honesty of the clubs, and their desire to win.

Nashua is away out in front Even if it wasn't, it would have nothing to worry about, since it has the best-looking team the "millionaires" could have let the decision pass without comment. But they are out to win every game they start, and much being the case they tossed reason to the wind when they saw victory escaping their grasp

We have never known of a quee thenatia affair in the history of the "Twi" League and, in our opinion, the great majority of the fans believe that everything is conducted above board. Happenings such as those of last night, however, will help convince the small minority, who might doubt it, that the afterupper clubs do not know the meaning of "in the bag"

TIGER BUILDING UP SPEED FOR JOCK MALONE

FLOWERS HAS PLANS TO WIN

By JACK CONWAY.

"SPEED! Speed! That' what I'm working for!"

Tiger Flowers, sensational Southern middleweight, made this statement to the writer as he stopped for a breathing spell during a brisk workout at Jim Toland's Gym in preparation for his ten-round bout with Jock Malone which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. at Braves Field tomorrow night.

Jack Conway

"When I fought Malone out at East Chicago, he caught me with a right hand punch to the chin in the seventh round. It stunned me for a minute but I came back fighting," continued Flowers. "I intend to be so fast Friday night that Jock won't find a resting place for his right hand. I thought I had the edge in our East Chicago bout, though some of the papers declared the affair a draw.

The Tiger then went back into action, while Manager Walk Miller kept time.

There isn't anything fancy about the Tiger in the gym. It's all work and no play. He appears tireless as he goes through his training stunts. He doesn't even take advantage of the brief rest between rounds. He keeps moving all of the time.

Flowers first skipped rope for two rounds on the floor of Toland's Gym as he waited for a photographer to snap him. Later he skipped rope for a couple of rounds, did two rounds on a punching bag, worked a round on the big bag, boxed three rounds with Joe Hall, Buffalo welterweight who meets Ted Smith of Canton, Ohio, in the semi-final on Friday night, and topped off his workout with some stuff on the gym apparatus.

Miller Knows Boxing

As the Tiger clawed around the gym, Miller talked with the writer. Managers of boxers earn their money by knowing what to say and when to say it and for their ability to make the right kind of matches. Miller has proved he is one of the great managers of this boxing game.

"Flowers has made $100,000 so far this year," said Walk. "And we haven't had any one particular big shot at the money. We started making the big money after Flowers knocked out Johnny Wilson at the New York American's Christmas Basket show last December.

"Since then Flowers has boxed on an average of once each week. On occasions he has boxed twice a week and once he boxed three times with in a seven-day period. I have given him a few layoffs as I don't wish him to go stale on account of too much boxing.

"Flowers has not only made money, but he has saved it. He has invested his ring earnings in real estate in Atlanta, Ga. He now has an income of $300 a week from rentals. He has a tidy sum left after he pays the expenses of carrying his properties.

"The Tiger is looking forward to the day he retires from the ring. It is mighty tiresome hopping all over the country, living in strange cities and making long railroad jumps.

"FLOWERS will keep battling until he has won the world's middleweight championship from Greb. These men fought a year ago at Freemont, Ohio. The Tiger had the edge. Greb was so impressed by Flowers that he bet $9,000 that the Tiger would beat Wilson. He later lost $5,000 on each of the Delaney bouts.

"It will take a fast, clever boxer like Flowers to beat Greb. None of the slow fellows has a chance of winning over the Pittsburgh whirlwind.

I look for the Tiger to beat Malone. All Flowers will have to look out for is Jock's right hand. That's why the Tiger is so eager to build up speed.

"Flowers will be in the best of condition for Friday night's mill. I called off a match with Martin Burke in Detroit so that I could bring Flowers in town early. Malone is the best man the Tiger has met so far in Boston and so we cannot take any unnecessary chances."

Malone Means Business

PERSPIRATION ALL OVER THE BATTLER'S FACE AS HE ENDS FAST WORKOUT IN GYM HERE

This remarkable close-up by Bill Meikle, staff camera man, just taken in a local gymnasium, strikingly illustrates the careful preparation Jock Malone is making for his battle with Tiger Flowers. Malone will be in the pink when he steps into the ring at Braves Fields tomorrow night. Incidentally, the close-up shows how a box fighter's ears get to be after a few hectic contests. Malone, who was in this office yesterday, has a mighty interesting personality.

KAPLAN CHOICE OVER HERMAN TONIGHT

By SID MERCER.

Waterbury, Ct., Aug. 27.—If condition is to be a deciding factor in the 10-round featherweight championship battle between Pete Herman and Kid Kaplan here tonight, the challenger has a better chance than the champion, public opinion today.

Kaplan is the champion and a native of Connecticut, two good reasons why the odds are 7 to 5 that he will grab the decision and 1 to 4 that he will win by a knockout.

It is reported, however, that the native son is having trouble with the weight. Kaplan is a natural 130 pounder. Last Winter when he was sweeping through the field in the featherweight tournament in New York, he had to work hard to come in at 126 pounds for each of his three starts.

Herman has been at the weight practically ever since he went to New Haven to train. He weighed just 126 pounds after a workout last Saturday and a little over 125 when he finished six easy rounds yesterday.

The Babe is as industrious as Kaplan in his training, but he is able to relax and feel at home.

"I like every one, so I will win," he says. "It isn't as if I were some youngster who had never seen Kaplan and was nervous about fighting him in his own ballwick.

"I have licked him five times and I know how to handle him. At long range he hasn't a chance to outpoint me. At close range I know how to block him. His forte is to hit. I look a decision from him in his own back yard once and I think I will do it again."

George P. Mulligan, promoter of the fight, is all set for the big affair.

"All I want now is good weather," said Mulligan. "From the advance sale it looks as if the gate should be at least $50,000 and may do capacity which is $60,000. They are coming by train and motor from all parts of the East."

"Loughran and Tommy has a couple of days to sling correctly, but I expect to station for eight rounds with

LIVERMORE IS IN LIMELIGHT ONCE MORE

By FRANK H MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Report appearing in the financial section of the Boston Evening American Tuesday to the effect that Jesse L. Livermore, former Boston "market wizard," was back in the stock market, has been commented on by every big newspaper with a financial following. This shows that the tawny-haired scion of State Street is still a big figure in the public eye.

One financial writer in Wall Street says: "Sound logic of veterans will not permit them to be eye that any speculative willow-pullment is as keen as Livermore was. Should he rate a bull campaign or undertake to accumulate stocks for an opposition of that sort at current market levels, the insecurity in the end of his astenity to have refused to participate in the market in a large way when prices were much lower."

* * *

Stock market operations aren't always along logical lines or subject to logical rules. If any logician would like to disagree with that, let him try to "beat the market" with his logic.

Report that Mr. Livermore was "long" 500 shares of U S Steel was interesting news to the recommendation of Whitney & Lowell that it be purchased either on cash or margin basis.

"The market perspective of many financial wiseacres is somewhat obscured by the rapid rise and high price of about a dozen well known rich men's stocks," writes an investor. "It might be well to refresh their memories and reassure them that present conditions are not abnormal by quoting some stock prices not so many years ago:

the Deus ex Machina, soothing one, encouraging the other, forgetting self and his painful wounds, in his service for others.

But none of them were confident or happy yet.

How would Vanessa be when she recovered sufficiently to take up her life once more? Had the hurt gone too deeply, would she ever forgive Hubert or care again?

All days come to those who wait patiently, and at last, when October was fully grown and leaves were ruddy and glowing, and frosts in the dawn sent queer grey mists over the world, a pale and fragile Vanessa lay in the cozy firelight in her chintz room and welcomed Ralph Daingerfield.

Tears almost rose to the dimly brown eyes as he looked at her small transparent hands, and her shadowy white face, which appeared all eyes.

"Vanessa, little cousin."

"Dear Ralph!" He kissed her small, thin fingers lovingly.

"It has been again."

"I have passed through shadow land."

"Vanessa, Hubert is waiting for you, now that you have come through."

She lay back on the pale pink silk cushions, and softly smoothed the swansdown of her exquisite wrap.

"Nothing matters to me any more, Ralph."

"Vanessa, you must not say that. Hubert has been unutterably wretched. He is only longing to tell you of his worship of you; his understanding."

She shrugged her feeble shoulders patiently.

"I have nothing to say to him. Why did he marry me and break all my beliefs and my heart? I have nothing to say to him."

"But he loves you!" Ralph pleaded, his own heart aching, but the courage with makes a man win the V. C. does not often desert him. "Vanessa, you must see him—must let him plead his cause."

An indifferent half smile came over her beautiful ethereal face.

"Yes, I will see him if he wishes, but nothing matters to me any more."

DOES SHE REALIZE?

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on Problems of Love.

"DOES she understand? Can she understand?

These questions have occurred to many a man when the girl he loves has seemed capricious and unreasonable in her demands. Now and then the question is answered tragically after marriage, as in the case of Kipling's "Vampire." The husband of the Vampire learned that the woman he loved and married did not understand, never had and never could understand.

Perhaps it is better to face such questions honestly and frankly when they first occur rather than go on with an engagement and marriage only to find marriage disastrously unhappy.

Let's hope G. I. B.'s problem will be solved by clearing away any misunderstanding that may exist between him and his sweetheart.

His Letter

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes G. I. B. "I am in love with a girl of twenty. We've been keeping company for three years. My affection has been sincere at all times and I love her very dearly. This she well knows. But at times she doesn't seem to reciprocate my feelings.

"She has told me often that the reason she doesn't love me more is because I don't take her to shows and give her a good time. She wants me to take her to the theatre three or four times a week. It pleases her to have me spend money on her.

"I would like very much to please her in this respect, but I can't, as I am at the head of my own business which I took over from my father. During the last three years of hard times I have lost large sums of money. I have worked hard to keep up my good credit, which will mean a great deal in the future.

"Within the last six months the business has been showing a profit. If this keeps up I will very shortly regain the money I lost.

"During these three years I have been working long hours and have been meeting my sweetheart most of the time after 9 p. m. This aggravates her, yet she knows the truth—that I can't come earlier.

"I devote all my Sundays to her and also see her occasionally during the week. This doesn't satisfy her. No matter what I do, she doesn't appreciate it. This hurts me very much, as I am always in a hurry to be near her and try to please her. I am sure to get along with her demands. Now and then the question is answered tragically after marriage, as in the case of Kipling's "Vampire." The husband of the Vampire learned that the woman he loved and married did not understand, never had and never could understand.

"I shall have to continue working long hours, as I have secured business which will keep me busy until January, 1926. I have decided that if I am not worth waiting for, and she cannot see that I am working for both our futures, she is not the girl for me.

"It will mean a great sacrifice to discontinue our courtship and will be a disappointment to both families. But if it is for the best I will try to forget her. I try in every way to make her understand. But she will not listen—only wants her own way. Please favor me with your opinion of the situation.

"G. I. B."

Possibly the reason your sweetheart doesn't understand is because you have not made the situation clear to her, however clear it may appear to you.

In the first place are you and she formally engaged? Does she understand that you wish to marry her within a reasonable time? A woman can hardly be content to give all her devotion to one man for three years when there exists no clear-cut engagement and prospect of marriage.

Spend a Little Money

Spend a little money on her and economize in other ways. A nine o'clock movie now and then may help as a substitute for the theatre. Take her for pleasant outings on Sundays. The change will do you both good.

If you should discover that she honestly doesn't care and prefers her freedom, of course, you'll have to let her go. In that case you'll know she's not the girl for you and is incapable of understanding.

But I believe that if you have an affectionate talk with her, and make the situation clear, asking her to marry you in a year's time or less, and promising that your long working hours will not last much longer, you'll find that the mists of misunderstanding between you two will clear away and love will triumph over doubts.

CARE OF THE FEET

By Maria Jeritza

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

PROPER care of the feet is essential to health and loveliness at all time But in Summer, especially, much of a woman's comfort and attractive appearance depends directly on the wise measures she adopts in caring for her feet and ankles

Never was there a greater fallacy than the idea that if the feet are covered by fashionable shoes, it matters not how they are crowded and cramped.

The moment your feet are uncomfortable, you lose a good deal of grace of posture and carriage and you lose also the care-free expression that adds so much to beauty. Incidentally, feet that hurt are also fatal to the charm of a happy disposition as any form of torture known to the average human being.

So if you wish to be your loveliest and healthiest, if you wish to feel and look happy and well, wear comfortable, properly fitted shoes. If you must wear slippers with high heels and cramped narrow toes on the street, at least slip into comfortable Greek sandals the moment you reach the comfort of home. But if you are wise and value your youth and beauty, you will select for street wear, shoes with flexible arches and the straight inner sole that preserves the natural contour of the foot.

Wearing these comfortable, well-balanced sport shoes during the day will enable you to put on dainty high-heeled slippers for a few hours each evening or on dress occasions without discomfort or injury to your feet. Too short stockings are as fatal to foot loveliness as ill fitting shoes, for they cramp the feet at the joints and may cause bunions.

Whatever you wear on special occasions, for everyday daytime wear select straight-soled, flexible-arched, moderate-heeled oxfords or pumps.

In case you are troubled with corns, bunions or ingrowing toenails, visit a chiropodist and get efficient attention. This will cost a dollar or two, but you will be repaid by more speedily ridding yourself of discomfort than if you try to endure or remove corns. Wear properly-fitting stockings and shoes so that the corns will not return.

The feet should be bathed at least once a day. This is essential in hot weather. Wash out your stockings at night for absolutely clean hosiery is vital to daintiness and comfort.

Dry your feet carefully after your bath, then dust between your toes with talc powder or better still with boracic acid powder to which has been added a small quantity of salicylic acid. Finally draw on clean, fresh stockings and if you can manage it, a fresh pair of shoes For it rests the feet to wear alternate pairs of shoes.

Here's a simple exercise which in addition to plenty of walking should keep your feet, ankles and arches strong and slim.

Seat yourself in a chair high enough so that your feet rest comfortably on the floor back of you as far as they will reach. Now keeping your heels on the floor, raise your toes as high as you can and return to position. Repeat ten times.

Next stretch your feet as far as you can in front of your chair with the entire foot resting on the floor Keeping your toes on the floor raise your heels as high as you possibly can and return to position. Repeat ten times. This double exercise is excellent for your arches, toes and ankles and should do much to keep your feet strong and free because it not only limbers them but helps circulation.

"Coming East at once. Must see you. Must know truth about Lal

'NEAL.'

For two wonderful weeks Jim and I have known the beauty of "love in a cottage." This morning something began stirring in my mind and whispering that our fortnight of romance is over.

I thought that "something" was my own morbid fancy. But now our paradise has been invaded. It seems strange that the first outside influence to come and rob me of peace and tranquillity should be that telegram from my brother Neal.

"Coming East at once. Must see you. Must know truth about Jim. Neal."

Words of Telegram

Those are the stark words of the telegram which I stood crumpling in my hand while the shabby young messenger who had been the bearer of the yellow envelope began whistling the 'Limehouse Blues' as he mounted his bicycle and pedalled down the path to the gate of The Birches around the turn and out of sight.

"Jim mustn't know," I told myself

I smoothed Neal's telegram and put it into the pocket of the little green jersey dress I was wearing. Suddenly Jim sat up and called vigorously:

"Coming down here to be high priestess of my grove—or must I return to civilization and resume [illegible] your side on the Gloucester fish mock on the porch?"

"I'll come to you," I said gratefully. "When I [illegible] down to the village for bread I'll [illegible] speak to [illegible] Neal's telegram. I'll [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and

Have a Try Yourself---Start Now and Win One of the Eight Prizes

HUNDREDS of New Englanders are continuing to enjoy the new "wordless funnies" contest of the greater Boston Evening American. New recruits are being added to the ranks of the contestants daily. Each person who tries the new game tells a friend or two and in this manner the ranks are swelled.

Everybody seems to enjoy the fun of the "funnies" from grandmother down. It gives everyone a chance to work off that "funny streak" we all possess in some degree. It's good practice, too. Maybe the training you get now will result in some future benefit as a writer of jokes or humorous stories. There's plenty of room at the top for writers of humor, whether their writings take the form of fiction stories or just plain jokes for the magazines.

The judges of the Boston Evening American's new "wordless comics" continue to report evidences of a high order of intelligence in the completed "funnies" received from contestants. "It's really surprising," said one of the judges, "to note the excellent results being turned in. In this contest, I had no idea there were so many 'funny' people in New England."

The "wordless funny" printed today should interest all fat men and their friends. While "Fatty" was wildly fanning himself with one hand and wiping perspiration from his weeping brow with the other during the recent hot spell, the telephone bell rang. Whatever happened during that conversation changed him from a torrid zone creature into one of the frozen north. Now what happened? That's up to YOU. We haven't the slightest idea of what should go in those blank spaces left by the artist.

Did he swear at the "hone"? Or yell at his wife? Maybe it was a wrong number such as the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company is handing out so frequently under its new higher rates. All those things are for YOU to determine and if your remarks are the funniest received you'll be awarded first prize of $5. The other prizes are, second, $3; third, $2, and five of $1 each.

FUNNIES PRIZE WINNERS FOR AUG. 21

The following are the names of those picked as prize winners for Picture No. 5 of the Funnies Contest which appeared in the Boston Evening American of Friday, August 21:

FIRST PRIZE, $5—Dave Jenkins, 747 Cambridge street, Cambridge, Mass.

SECOND PRIZE, $3—Mrs. Marion A. Crowley, 22 Whitney street, Amherst.

THIRD PRIZE, $2—Walter L. Colburn, 17 Peters street, Cambridge.

FIVE PRIZES, $1—John A. Burchell, 8 Maple place, Boston, Mass.; Miss Grace R. Coughlin, 22 Albin street, Concord, N. H.; Grace R. Olin, 11 Elston street, West Somerville, Mass.; Leon J. Robinson, 226 Chestnut street, Chelsea; T. R. McKeown, 5 Evergreen avenue, Winter Hill, Mass.

TELEPHONE GIRL NOW WELL

Suffered Two Years, Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marshalltown, Iowa.—"At the time I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a telephone operator and had been suffering for two years with bearing-down pains and cramps in my legs so I could scarcely walk. At times I could not do any kind of work on account of my trouble. My mother was taking the medicine for the Change of Life and she thought it would help me and it did. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I recommend your medicines to my friends and I will answer all letters asking about them."—Mrs. P. E. EVERTS, Box 149, Marshalltown, Ia.

Mrs. Norton's Experience

"Before I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and had such terrible dizzy spells that I could not stand some days. I had no appetite, was restless at night and felt all run-down. My husband got me a bottle of the Vegetable Compound and I am surprised at the results after taking it."—Mrs. CLARENCE S. A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland.

KIPLING may have written the authentic line on how to "learn about women"—but the only infallible way to learn about men is to buy a country house and go in for week-end parties.

* * *

The thing that a suburban hostess learns about human nature, in a few weeks, would make the psychologists sigh with envy.

Helen Rowland

No matter how much she may know about her own husband, she soon discovers that she was merely in the kindergarten, as to the varieties of nuisance a man can BE, and the number of hidden peculiarities he may possess.

* * *

She learns that, after 24 hours, all men are pests around the house, no matter how good, how fascinating or how decorative they may be.

* * *

That there is very little difference in husbands—and that her own husband is no worse, and probably a little better, than the rest.

That man's much admired chivalry develops a flat tire, when it comes to changing a mattress from one bed to another—rushing up to close the attic windows in a storm, economizing on hot water and bath-towels and making his own bed on the maid's day off.

* * *

That there are more varieties of masculine stomach than of American flora and fauna—and that one little innocent green peach can produce a knock in the engine of a whole week-end party.

* * *

That, while woman may have gotten her rights in the legislature, she still suffers from all her "wrongs" in the kitchen, where man's "tyranny" began.

That the surest way to lose caste among your friends is to offer them the hospitality of your house and the use of your beach, your car, and your club—and then let them see behind the scenes of your domestic menage.

That all men keep the breakfast waiting, not for any particular reason, but just on principle.

* * *

That one man, permitted to mix a punch or make a rarebit in your kitchen, can do more damage than the American Army could clean up in a week.

That one rainy week-end around a country house has more to do with the marriage and divorce statistics than the laws of the country.

That any woman with an attractive country house could marry at least once a season, if it were not against the law.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength

This preparation for the removal of freckles is so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by all drug and department stores with a guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil or waste time on lemon juice or cucumbers; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on a money-back guarantee.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

IF you are fortunate, as I hope you are, you will probably have completed your Summer vacation about the time this article is scheduled to appear.

If so, it gives me the opportunity to say at the right time a few things that ought to be said about vacations and especially a few things about recovering from their effects.

If you have spent your vacation wisely by having the best possible time under circumstances of complete change without having exhausted your energy by another set of activities, you will return refreshed and recreated.

If you belong to this fortunate group, my only advice to you with respect to getting over the effects of such a vacation is—don't!

By all means maintain these salutary results for the longest possible period.

You can do this best by quietly sitting down or lying down, and thinking over the conditions, and especially the habits, whether of dissipation or of industry, both of which may be equally disastrous, that brought on the fatigue or possibly the semi-invalidism that you experienced before going away for a rest.

If you can get these facts once clearly established in your mind, and if for a whole you will voluntarily recur to them, you will presently begin subconsciously, so to regulate your activities as to avoid their repetition.

It is by this kind of mental process that you gradually transform a health fact into a health habit.

It is possible, however, that you may not have spent your vacation as intelligently as I have indicated.

It is recorded in the no longer secret archives of society that overwrought men and over-fussed women, with their respective nervous systems reduced to a frazzle, have sought recuperation by playing bridge all night to the accompaniment of cigarettes, cigars, pipes and an abundance of Volstead whiskey.

I do not object, specifically, to a single one of these indulgences. On the contrary, I believe that smoking is tranquillizing to most people. I believe that a little alcohol, taken within physiological limits, is a good thing. I believe that cards and billiards and bowling and tennis and golf—especially the outdoor sports—are of inestimable benefit.

It is only the abuse of these indulgences, or any one of them, that I inveigh, because it is from their results that you must recover before you are as fit for your job as you were when you went away.

The way to recover from these efforts is to quit, cut them out, get rid of the accumulated poisons by a cathartic or two, take some hot evening baths and some cool morning ones, sleep as much as possible for several consecutive nights, eat plenty of plain food, but avoid tea and coffee for all except the morning meal.

Do these things for a little while, to get rid of the evil consequences of a misspent vacation.

How our graduates are placed

Many, through family influence, have positions waiting for them. Some start in business for themselves. Others are placed by the Burdett Employment Department. Placing graduates is regarded by Burdett College as an important part of its work. Through reliable service rendered since 1879 to business men, and persistent efforts in behalf of graduates, the Burdett employment service is unequalled. During the past ten years the demand for graduates has averaged about 3000 positions a year.

LOST LAKE

Lost Lake, favorite hunting grounds of the Weymissot Indians 300 years ago, is a clear mirror of virgin loveliness set in the pines and birches high above Groton, Mass.

Lying within one hour's ride of Boston over the famous Nashua Road between North Littleton and Groton, just beyond Concord and not far from Lowell and Nashua on the north and Ayer on the south, this gorgeous primitive playground unknown and unsolicited for years has just been discovered and offered exclusively to readers of the Boston Evening American and the Boston Advertiser as All-Year Camp Sites. Five Miles of shady Lake Frontage as well as acres of pine grove make this a paradise for cabins, bathing and canoeing as well as winter sports.

An All-Year Playground

BATHING—Clean, refreshing, warm water. Modern new bathhouses and new bathing pier. Sandy beaches free from weeds.

BOATING—Plenty of clean, new rowboats and Free instruction rides in company launch for the children and mothers.

CAMPING—Bring your lunch and picnic in the green carpeted Pine Groves. Ice cream, pop and sandwich stand on the grounds. Mineral spring water.

FISHING—Pickerel, perch and bass pout in Lost Lake and trout in neighboring brooks.

SHOOTING—Famous haunt of wild ducks, partridge and deer in season.

WINTER SPORTS—The Ridges afford natural ski and toboggan slides and easy access to the lake makes skating a delight.

Investigate, then ACT!

Every minute you delay means disappointment and loss later. Thousands of dollars worth of lots were sold last week, but there are still many choice lots left. THINK OF IT! $75; $15 down and only $1 a week. No more than 5 lots to any individual, only one coupon to be used in the purchase of each lot. France CAN Pay, and Should Pay, Honest Debt to U. S.

Tourists whose ships bring them home today will be cheered by what President Coolidge has to say about the French debt. They will grin because what he said at Swampscott will remind them of things they heard abroad.

It will remind them of the eternal process of dicker which goes on throughout continental Europe despite all the "Prices fixed" signs in five languages.

"Home again!" they'll say happily, "where a straight out business transaction isn't a hoss trade!"

President Coolidge has made it plain that there will be no "hoss tradin'" over a plain obligation of international honor.

The French themselves have recognized the right of Belgium to special consideration from the moment the German hordes poured over the Belgian border in 1914. Special American consideration for Belgium is based on facts which all the Allies have recognized officially. It is based not at all on any promise given by President Wilson or anyone else, but on the facts back of that promise.

And the sooner the French people face the facts of the present situation the better for all concerned.

The only way for France to get special consideration is to admit to her impending bankruptcy.

The French people are a proud people. They will not do that, first, because it is not true, and, second, because it is a self-belittling thing for any man or any nation to admit.

French politicians, on the other hand, have not hesitated to hint at impending bankruptcy in the course of their "hoss tradin'" abroad. At the same time they have been deluding their people at home with rainbow promises of not having to pay what they owe.

President Coolidge's sharp words from Swampscott should bring this forcefully to the minds of those Americans who have sought to propagandize in favor of the two-faced position of French politicians.

It is not too much to hope that his action will arouse the honest, prosperous, decent opinion of France to the facts they must face.

France can pay. Lord Beaverbrook pointed this out forcefully the other day. The great publisher spoke in England, an England that has suffered devastation comparable to that of France, a devastation that keeps hundreds of thousands of her men, women and children on the verge of starvation seven years after the war has ended, yet an England that has paid and will pay.

"On tonnage alone," Lord Beaverbrook said, "France's export of goods has increased 18 per cent. and her imports only 3 per cent. In addition there must be added the sum total of her invisible exports, the incalculable millions in luxury services which France renders the whole world and the United States in particular in that consummate exhibition, the night life of Paris."

Returning tourists will confirm this, with a grin, too.

France can pay. France should pay. And France should realize that payment is not a matter of "hoss tradin'" with a man named Calvin Coolidge from the Vermont hills.

Frightening of Children

Only a Brute Strikes a Child

The most acute suffering is that produced by FEAR, and those who suffer most acutely from fear are YOUNG CHILDREN.

Who does not remember the intense agony in youth based upon the superstitious teachings of some foolish older person?

And how many children are made miserable through the hideous fear that comes from threats and from punishment postponed?

If a man should be whipped incessantly for three or four hours he would think his tormentor a monster of brutality.

Yet you say to a child:

"I will whip you for that tomorrow."

You sentence that child to hours of the most acute mental suffering, and if the child be nervous and unusually sensitive, you may permanently injure its health.

Here is a scene unfortunately not rare in this country:

A thin, nervous little boy, perhaps ten years old, was walking along a suburban street. Suddenly, on turning a corner, he was confronted by a man, apparently his father.

The child stood trembling. The man, in a voice of cold, concentrated anger, said:

"Didn't I tell you to come early? You go to the house and WAIT THERE TILL I COME BACK AND FIX YOU."

The man walked on and the poor child, without a word, started for home to await the coming punishment.

No more cruel treatment was ever endured by any human being than the punishment inflicted by that thoughtless man on the nervous, helpless child in his power.

Later, of course, there followed the punishment; a huge, powerful man striking repeatedly the delicate body of a child, emphasizing the brutality of his blows with more brutal words, and feeling when it was over that he had gloriously done his duty as a typical American father.

Of course, the actual brutal beating was only a small part of the child's ordeal.

The most horrible part was the waiting for punishment. No man in the death cell ever suffered more than thousands of children suffer every day waiting for the brutality which is to exemplify our savage notions concerning the education of children.

If such a monstrous parody on a father should be met in some lonely wood by a huge gorilla and treated as that father treats his own son, he would complain bitterly of the gorilla's ferocity. Yet it would not equal in any way his own brutal and less excusable cruelty.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I'M to auction off something to the lowest bidder. Any bid under three cents gets it. I'll even give you a bonus to take it off my hands. Yes, I admit it came to me expecting loving words of sympathy and comradely advice. And doubtless it's going to be wounded to the heart at my cruel reception of its confidence.

Well, as far as I'm concerned, it can keep right on being wounded. I'm a patient, good-natured old hunk of humanity and I stand for a lotta hard knocks for the sake of this paper. But when it comes to handing out condolence to Human Thomas Cats, I quit! If you like rough action, stick around.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"I'm just a young fellow in my early thirties and have been married eleven years this month. Own my home, have a car, and a few dollars in the bank. Have two boys—one is ten, the other eight—and I love and respect my wife with all my heart. I wouldn't give her up for all the money in the world, and we get along O. K. But here's what gets my goat.

With Other Women

"I sometimes go out with other women. Take them to a theatre, feed 'em and come home at 2 or 3 A. M., once a week. They are single. And they know I am married. They, by the way, come of real good families. My wife found me out several times, and knowing me as she does (!), overlooked everything.

It seems to me as though I am always meeting somebody. I just can't steer clear of some things, it seems. (I'm no Apollo or Rudolf, either, although I am an ex-football player.)

"Right after I got out of the army I got a bug for traveling and since then I've been in every country that a ship can reach. And that's not all. Three years ago I came home and have been here ever since and am real content, now that I've seen everything and can R. I. P. as far as traveling goes.

"I know I'm not on the level, and I try to do different, and I say to myself, I'm everything but a real man. But still I run out like that and take pleasure in it. Why, I don't know. Perhaps you can tell me just what is wrong. I've been married eleven years this month. Never in all that time have I really done anything wrong other than feed these women and make love to them. That is all.

"I hope you can put me straight on some other way that I haven't tried. And I've tried everything, too. Please do not shout 'will power' to me. You don't need that when you don't drink or abuse your wife or break any Commandments. But if you can show me some way out I will be more than grateful to you, I assure you.

"Sincerely yours,

"FIRST ASSISTANT."

So you were a football player—YOU! And a soldier to boot! Just think of it. Once upon a time you played the game and weren't afraid of anything on earth! Once you stood shoulder to shoulder with other fighting men, fire in your eye, honor in your heart and the joy of clean, square battle boiling in your veins.

Once upon a time a great nation trusted you and you were worthy of the trust. Once upon a time your teammates looked to you to help and you never failed them.

Yours was the glorious kingdom of the blue sky and roaring wind, sunshine and tempest, brown earth and leaping fire, and all the proud sting of man adventuring. AND YOU GAVE IT UP FOR THIS!

Afraid to Be Seen

You who once bucked the line while thousands cheered, now sneak around like some red-eyed old cat, afraid to be seen by a scut you know, wasting your honor and your strength on women for whom you haven't the slightest respect!

You who held your word so high, and guarded the common trust imposed in you so valiantly, have not a shred of strength or truth within you which is undefiled!

"Not break any Commandments" —you've broken every commandment which binds a man to decent standing with his fellow man.

What can you do? I know what a REAL MAN would do. He'd go to his wife and tell her the whole shameful, cheap tale. Then he'd take that shred of rehabilitated honor and he'd guard it for the rest of his life with his heart's blood. That's what a REAL MAN would do. But I doubt if You can do anything so re —MEOW!

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THIS is the time of the year when the front porch is the most popular spot around the house. One girl said she belonged to such a large family that she and her sweetheart had to wait in line for the hammock.

HER sister used to sit in it all day in order to hold it for the evening.

A GIRL who's so fond of spooning should buy her own hammock.

EITHER that or go with a fellow who carries one with him.

STEPS are just as romantic as a hammock but they're not as comfortable.

HAMMOCKS are dangerous. One fellow proposed to his girl and when she turned him down he cut the rope.

AFTER that when a man proposed to her she always gave him her answer in the house.

IF a girl's in love, she doesn't have to go out on the porch. She can get just as many proposals in the living room.

ONE father was so anxious to have his daughter get married that he put nine sofas in the parlor.

AND every night he went in there and set the traps.

EVEN then it took his daughter three years to catch a husband.

AND for a wedding present he gave them the nine sofas.

BUT they sat on them so much before they got married that they haven't used them since.

IT'S funny that the minute a girl becomes engaged, she sells the couch.

SPIDERS catch their victims in webs, but women use hammocks.

SOME dames buy a hammock in the afternoon, use it in the evening and send it back in the morning.

BECOMING engaged is a business and the average girl has to cut down her overhead.

ONCE she's got a husband she doesn't need a hammock any more.

ORIGIN OF CHESS

By Mark Stuyvesant

A FEW years ago all America was startled by the arrival of another prodigy on its shores. This was the little nine-year-old chess marvel, Samuel Reeshewski, who hailed from the land of vodka and red shirts, and who claimed the world's chess championship title.

Sammy met twenty chess wizards at several tournaments and defeated each and every one of them simultaneously!

Naturally enough, such a remarkable phenomenon aroused widespread interest in this intellectual pastime. Men who played chess in the privacy of their own homes, because the game was not considered "socially elect," now boasted of their prowess openly.

The popularity of chess has led to many conjectures as to its origin. From the mass of hypotheses and semi-facts which have been presented, folk-lore has been gleaned. The game was known in Persia and in Arabia by the middle of the sixth century. It was originated in India, where it was known as chaturanga, "a complete army." The Persian catrang and Arabic shatraej are merely phonetic variations of the Sanskrit chaturanga.

Modern chess commenced with the sixteenth century. The several changes made then brought the game to the stage of perfection, which it has now reached.

Whoever was the inventor of chess had the game of war in his mind's eye. Chess is a battle, the chessboard a battlefield, and the pieces the opposing armies. For aught we know, chess may have been the prehistoric kriegspiel, or war game, designed to give, in miniature, instruction in the theory of war. More than any other game, it demands the military quality of instant seizure at the right moment.

HEARTS NEARLY SAME IN ALL RELIGIONS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Rev. William H. Garth, who was once assistant to the famous rector, Dr. W. S. Rainsford of St. George's Church in New York, and has recently been called to the American Church at Florence, Italy, some time ago preached a sermon from the text, "Deep Calleth Unto Deep."

The gist of the sermon was that while there was contention and difference in many heads about religion, there was no much difference in hearts.

The heart represents the depth of emotion and feeling in humanity. Religion appeals to the emotion.

The kind of feeling that is found in most hymns is a better ground of unity than that which is found in any creed.

Creeds are points of difference. Hymns are points of unity.

The Protestant, Unitarian or Hebrew can feel the human struggle and aspiration in such hymns as "God Moves in a Mysterious Way," or "Holy, Holy, Holy."

Such hymns, Dr. Garth says, are infinitely wider than the denominations who sing them, for they are not the work of creed makers, but the longing and devotion of souls.

A great preacher has said that when he was discouraged by divisions in the church and their controversies, he turned to the hymn book for comfort.

"Deep answers unto deep," he says, "not always like the Psalter. It is not always faultless logic or finished literary production or perfect oratory that makes a speaker eloquent and powerful."

It is on the unity of souls, in feeling and instinct, and not in the unity of intelligences, that there lies the true unity of the churches.

The hymns of the churches are common ground. In them there is no warfare. It is rarely that a combative hymn can live and be popular.

RACES AND HISTORY ON THE EARTH

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

IF IT would not, banish wars perhaps it would at least deprive them of much of their venom, to have everybody understand how little ground there is for drawing racial distinctions between nations.

We often hear violent prejudice expressed against those who speak another language. But modern study in anthropology and archaeology has shown that language is not a test, or proof, of race. Peoples of widely different origin speak the same language. So, too, nations are made up of people of divergent racial antecendents.

Races are the products of nature; nations of history. Progress and advancing forms of civilization are largely fruits of racial intermixture. An inbreeding race deteriorates. The totality of human excellence is only attainable by cross-breeding. There is no pure race in existence today. Those that have remained with the least intermixture have had the lowest civilizations.

False Theories

Eugene Pittard, anthropologist of the University of Geneva, asserts that false theories about race have been "confirmed by politicians to the profit of their ambitions, generative of recent catastrophies."

What we might call racial osmosis has been going on from time immemorial. The "longheads" and the "broadheads" (dolichocephals and brachycephals) have blended to form various "peoples" and nations. Now one racial type and now the other has been at the top.

Rising and falling like the molecules in a liquid whose temperature is varying, the individuals become inextricably mixed together, and their constituent atoms, racial elements, unite to form hybrid units, charged to a higher potentiality than their parents.

None of us can trace the sinuous line of his descent from the days when men fought with cave bears for homes, so why should we quarrel over race? All races are lost in humanity. Humanity has needed them all.

Even prehistory shows different races acquiring the same civilization.

At that marvelous prehistoric site, Les Eyzies, in France, which is the most impressive spot on this planet for anyone who meditates on the adventures of mankind in its infancy and its growing youth, there are to be seen remains of two remarkable races—the Cro-Magnon, "very tall, short broad face, still prognathous;" and the Laugerie - Chanolade," petite face, more harmonious, without prognathism."

Both were long-heads, yet they were different races. And both represented a stage of evolution far advanced beyond that of their predecessors, the men of the Neanderthal race, "thickest, robust and bestial, with enormous, prognathous faces."

The Neanderthals disappeared and the others took their place and began to paint their cavern walls with the earliest examples of human pictorial art—pictures of their contemporaries of the animal creation, mammoths, bears, horses, reindeer —drawn with such mastery of form, attitude and action that they might serve as models for modern beginners, and for some graduates, too.

One cannot but wish that these ancient artists had been inspired with the thought that their pictured walls might, some ten or twenty thousand years in the future, be examined and studied by successors of theirs, possessing a civilization that they could not yet dream of, and who would treasure beyond all price a portrait of one of these cavern painters, drawn—as he surely could have drawn it—as true to life as the animal forms around it.

Blood Still Here

There must have been some Magdalenian belle who fired the hearts of the mammoth hunters, whose face glowing on that cavern wall would have made the natural gallery of the Font-de-Gaume more famous than the Louvre.

Later came (from Asia it would seem) "broad-heads" (brachycephals), who apparently drove out the "long heads." But around Perigord, the country of Les Eyzies, some anthropologists imagine that they can still detect the ear-marks of the Cro-Magnon race in the existing inhabitants.

But those petite Laugerie-Chanolades, it is believed, were driven to the Pyrenees and over into Spain—but their blood is yet on the earth.

SHOW THE WORLD THAT YOU ESTEEM YOUR PARENTS

When Mother and Dad come to see you this Summer in your city home don't be ashamed to take them to the places that you know would interest them, just because they give evidence of having lived in a world apart from you.

Possibly they are timid in a large city. They may gaze around at its wonders—but do not be so heartless as to tell them that they are acting like "country Jakes" or keep admonishing them about this and that.

Don't act as if you were ashamed of them.

Don't hurt their feelings so that they wish to get back home.

Don't sadden the hearts of the dear old couple who guided your first footsteps.

Dad and Mother are genuine in their love for you and would stick to you if the whole world turned against you, which is more than some of your city friends would do.

Let your parents do as they please when they visit you and let there be buoyant happiness in your heart as you escort them around.

If you seem loyal and proud of them, others will take their cue from you.
